City Workers Adopt Plan For Retirement Pensions

City workers passed a proposal to have a municipal employee pension plan, City Manager W. Raymond Miller said today.

Votes cast Friday and Saturday were tabulated this morning. A total of 86 employees voted for the plan. Ten voted against it.

"A few more votes may come in today, but there are not enough pending to make any difference," Miller said.

The proposal required a simple majority for passage. The city has 119 employees. The city council previously approved the plan under a new state law.

The city will notify the Municipal League that employees want the plan.

Before any predictions can be made as to when the plan will take effect, the city will have to wait a reply from the league.

It is doubtful that the plan will take effect before January, Miller said.

The pension plan will cost the city $39,409 annually to be paid from the general revenue fund. The cost was estimated by an actuary based on the present number of employees and their salaries.

When the plan takes effect, all city employees will pay four percent of their incomes into the plan. The money will be deducted from their checks. The city will pay more than a matching amount into the plan for each of its employees.

When the employee retires he will receive one percent of his highest salary received in the last five years of employment multiplied times his years of service.

For example, a man, who at retirement had worked 30 years for the city and was making $400 a month, would receive $120 per month pension.

The income derived from the plan will be in addition to social security payments. Like Social Security, it will be nontaxable income, Miller said.

The city's minimum age for retirement is 60. The maximum is 65.

A provision in the plan allows the employee to take a deferred retirement if he quits before he is 60.

The years of service he worked and the amount of salary received will be computed as before but he would not receive credit for the years after he quit. And, he could not start receiving payments until age 60.

All employees of the city will pay into the plan when it takes effect, but they may draw out their money and the interest it accumulates if they decide to leave the city's employ at any time, Miller said.

The plan also includes on-the-job and off-the-job disability benefits.

For an on-the-job disability, the person permanently disabled will receive the full credit for years of potential employment.

For example, if a person is permanently disabled at age 34 while working for the city, he would be given credit in computing his pension as if he had worked for the city until age 60. If at the time of his injury, he had worked for the city four years and was making $400 per month, he would draw $4 times 30, or $120 per month, beginning at the time of his disability.

An off-the-job disability would credit the person only with the amount of years of service he had actually completed times one percent of his highest salary in the last five years of his employ.

Using the same example, the man permanently injured off the job would receive $4 times four years, or $16 per month, beginning at the time of his disability.

Market De Gaulle Remains Against Hookup British, for Gold Standard Urged

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The dean of Missouri's College of Agriculture today recommended a marketing partnership of agribusiness firms to protect the independence of agriculture.

Dr. Elmer Kiehl of Columbia made the suggestion in a prepared speech at a luncheon session of the first Governor's conference on Agriculture. Some 500 producers and representatives of farm organizations, allied businesses and government agencies attended the opening sessions of the two-day meeting.

"This three-cornered relationship may be a profitable one for all three parties. However, it could be a cat and dog fight that eliminates the little guy—that is, the farmers."

"Individually, farmers will have no influence on the world market. Collectively, farmers can conceivably have some influence. I doubt that any agribusiness firm is big enough by itself to protect the independence of agriculture."

Earlier, Robert S. Overton of Columbia said "the industrialized agriculture that lies just over the horizon can be both a blessing and a curse."

Overton is agricultural statistician for the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle again today rejected Britain's efforts to join the European Common Market despite its financial housecleaning.

He said its devaluation of the pound, however, may lead the world's money system back to the gold standard, something he advocates.

De Gaulle told a news conference he feels Britain still is not ready to enter the Common Market and said France will not negotiate on its application for entry. Britain's membership, at this time, he added, would mean breaking up the economic community.

On other subjects, de Gaulle repeated his contention that U.S. involvement in the war in Vietnam prevented a search for a Middle East peace by the Big Four — France, Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States. De Gaulle believes only the Big Four can settle Middle East problems.

De Gaulle said even a start on Common Market negotiations, which Britain has asked, would be advance approval for breaking up the European community. What is needed now, he declared, is a strengthening of European ties to be able to match the economic power of the United States.

France would be willing, he went on, to enter into an agreement for association status of Britain and other nations to facilitate the necessary British transformations. Association would be limited to commercial arrangements, he indicated, and this status would deprive the "associate" members of a voice in the community. Britain already has rejected association status.

De Gaulle said the monetary measures taken by Britain to shore up its economy are appreciated in Paris.

"But," he added, "for the British Isles to tie up to the Continent a profound mutation must take place."

"All depends, then, not at all on a negotiation . . . which would be the death knell of the community, but on the action of the great English people to establish of itself one of the pillars of a European Europe."

France, de Gaulle added, is not going to seek to abolish the Common Market and disperse its institutions.

He led up to his remarks on the gold standard by saying: "There is an American take-over of our businesses, but this doesn't come as much from the structural superiority of the United States as it does from the exportation of inflated dollars."

"It is curious to note that the total balance of payments deficit of the United States in the last eight years is equal to the total of American investment in Western Europe."

"France wants to put an end to this abuse in the interest of the world and even in the interest of the United States, which must get rid of this deplorable deficit."

"It is possible that the storm unleashed by the devaluation of the pound will lead to the re-establishment of the international monetary system founded on the immutability and impartiality which are the privileges of gold."

Turning to the Middle East crisis, de Gaulle said: "I do not see how an agreement can be reached as long as one of the Big Four nations continues the odious war in Southeast Asia."

"If the Vietnamese war were settled there could be an international understanding which could lead to an agreement on the Middle East."

"It is evident now that the fighting in the Middle East has only been suspended. A settlement can only be reached through international means. Any lasting settlement must provide for free navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba and the Suez Canal. France believes there must be an international status for Jerusalem."

Stepped up Activity by Reds Leaves 25 Americans Dead, 2 More Planes Go Down

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces, striking boldly in three of the most critical areas of South Vietnam Sunday and today, slammed hundreds of mortars into American positions and held off U.S. Marines in two fierce ground battles.

U.S. losses were 25 dead and 134 wounded, while 38 of the enemy were killed, the U.S. Command said.

The U.S. Command announced the loss of two more tactical fighter-bombers over North Vietnam. It said a Marine A6 Intruder was lost to unknown causes Saturday, and an Air Force F4 Phantom went down Sunday during 88 U.S. missions over the North. The four fliers are missing.

This brought to 757 the announced number of U.S. warplanes downed in combat over the North in the nearly three-year-old bombing campaign.

Nineteen Marines and 38 of the enemy were reported killed and 96 Marines were wounded in the Marines' two ground battles just west of Con Thien, below the demilitarized zone, and 100 miles to the southeast, below Da Nang.

The U.S. Command also reported that American forces had found an additional 224 North Vietnamese bodies on the Dak To battlefield bringing to 1,641 the total number of Communists claimed killed in the epic three-week battle. U.S. casualties also were revised upward, to 287 dead and 1,000 wounded.

Communist troops concealed in a heavily fortified village 19 miles southwest of Da Nang hit three companies of attacking Marines Sunday, and a reinforcing company with a savage crossfire of mortars, automatic weapons and small arms fire. Twelve Marines and 16 Communist troops were reported killed in this encounter and 80 Marines were wounded.

Near the DMZ a mile west of the Con Thien outpost, Communist mortarmen on Sunday shelled two companies of advancing Marines with 103 rounds. A dug-in platoon of enemy troops meanwhile kept up a stream of small arms and automatic weapons fire. This battle cost the Marines seven dead and 16 wounded, but the Leathernecks reported killing 22 of the enemy.

The B52s were sent deeper than ever before into North Vietnam after almost bumper-to-bumper truck traffic was reported carrying ammunition and other supplies through the pass to Laos 20 miles away and finally to Communist troops in South Vietnam.

Northeast monsoons continued to limit most of the U.S. air raids on North Vietnam to that country's southern panhandle Sunday. Air Force, Marine and Navy pilots ripped several bridges and a supply area.

Two Women Face Charges after Fight

Two women came to blows following an argument at 5:30 p.m. Saturday. The argument apparently was about clothing, police reported.

Earline Pimental, Vanduser, was charged with peace disturbance. Joyce Worth, 613 Cleveland, was charged with assault and battery. They were arrested at the North residence.

In other police activity, David Holfield, 510 West Gladys, was charged at 11:55 p.m. Saturday with assault and battery on South Kingshighway.

Willie Lane, 307 Alabama, was charged at 4 p.m. Sunday on Luther Street with drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

Carl Joyce, 504 Benton, reported at 4:20 p.m. Sunday that a set of hand tools including open end wrenches and a drill were taken from his home Friday.

A car driven by Monroe M. Jackson, 83, 139 North West St., sideswiped a parked car owned by Virginia L. Cooley, 37 Memphis, at 9:26 p.m. Saturday at 514 Tanner. No injuries resulted.

Jackson said that bright lights charged at an approaching car temporarily blinded him.

Holiday Death Toll Below Record Year

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Deaths on the nation's streets and highways mounted steadily Sunday night during the final day of the long Thanksgiving weekend, but the death toll was behind last year's record slaughter.

Heavy travelers clogged roads on their homeward journey Sunday and swelled the death toll to 651.

Last year 748 persons were killed over the Thanksgiving weekend, a record for any holiday period.

The count began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday, a 102-hour period.

In comparison, 567 persons were killed in a similar but non-holiday period from 6 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 8, to midnight Sunday, Nov. 12, an Associated Press survey showed.

The National Safety Council does not forecast the number of fatalities from traffic accidents expected over the Thanksgiving holiday period. The council regards the holiday as one which most Americans spend at home.

Two other four-day holidays this year had record traffic death tolls. Fatalities for the Memorial Day weekend numbered 608, and 732 deaths were counted during the Independence Day observance.

There were 469 traffic fatalities during the three-day New Year holiday. The three-day Labor Day weekend accounted for 604 highway deaths. Neither was a record.

Five fatal accidents in Southwest Missouri Saturday helped boost the state's Thanksgiving holiday traffic toll to 18.

The highway patrol recorded only two deaths Sunday as the four-day period drew to a close. Tabulation started Wednesday night.

Julay Jean Rogers was killed Sunday on a motorcycle that hit a car in St. Louis.

Mrs. Mary Etta Lindsey, 18, of Columbia died Sunday after being hurt Saturday in a two-car crash on old U.S. 40 in Boone County.

Saturday's toll in the southwest included: George Edwardson, 40, of Springfield, hit by a car as he walked across U.S. 65 in Buffalo.

Markie Joe Williams, 14, of Reeds Spring, killed in a two-car crash near Branson.

Mrs. Pearl Williams Smith, 71, of Springfield, killed in a collision at a Springfield intersection.

Gordon Irwin Reese, 34, of Nixa, crushed under a farm tractor which went into a ditch as he was driving it through Nixa.

Claude Letheo, 73, of Ava, hit by a car while he walked across a rural road southeast of Ava. A train-car crash in Berkeley killed John Holloway III, 19, and his sister, Susan, 17, of Florissant.

St. Louis Man Shot to Death

CARDWELL — A 40-year-old St. Louis man was shot and killed following an argument at the Bootheel Tavern west of here at 1:15 a.m. Sunday.

The victim, James Arnold Jr., was shot once in the face. Phillip D. Harper, 27, of Cardwell is being held in Dunklin County jail at Kennett on a charge of murder.

The highway patrol said Harper and Arnold had been fighting at several taverns in Missouri and Arkansas during the night and that they were fighting at the Bootheel Tavern before the shooting.

The murder weapon, believed to be a revolver, has not been recovered.

School Gets Grant, Needs Personnel

PERRYVILLE, Mo. (AP) — The Perry County school superintendent has a $143,078 he would like to spend, but can't until he finds a combination music and art teacher and a teacher's assistant who can drive.

The money was awarded to the schools of Perry County by the Federal government, but Oscar P. Kasten, county school superintendent, has been unable to spend any of it for several months.

Under terms of the grant, the county would establish a mobile unit to aid in music and art training. The teacher's assistant would drive the unit.

Tax Hike Tops List of Controversial Items Congress to Take up After Holiday Rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rested from a Thanksgiving recess, Congress returns to consider controversial legislation dealing with poverty, foreign aid, Social Security and the big issue of the session—taxes.

Both Senate and House scheduled non sessions today—but the key decisions will come first in the committee rooms.

President Johnson's proposal for a 10 percent surtax on income taxes was considered to be on its deathbed two weeks ago and some opponents, both Democratic and Republican, say they still believe it will expire.

But the British government's move Nov. 18 to devalue the pound has produced new arguments from the administration for the tax hike—arguments it hopes will resurrect the tax bill in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., who has been strongly opposed to the bill, has scheduled a hearing for Wednesday at which administration spokesmen will present their new arguments. A key element of their case is expected to be a pledge to cut federal spending by $4 billion. Mills has contended government spending cuts must accompany any tax increase.

The hearing's outcome could determine whether Congress will adjourn by Dec. 15. If Mills and a majority of his committee remain opposed to the tax bill, Capitol Hill sources said, a Dec. 15 adjournment would be possible.

However, if Mills and his majority have a change of heart and send the bill to the House floor, a tentative debate on it could push back adjournment to the end of December.

Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, ranking Republican on the House Appropriations Committee, predicted today that "hasty passage of a tax bill is not likely."

Bow said an administration pledge to cut spending may end the tug of war between the President and Congress.

"However, other questions still require answers before the House will vote for higher taxes," Bow said. "Foremost among them is the economic situation of the country, now somewhat stagnant."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., another opponent of the tax bill, predicted "long and exhaustive floor debate" if it survives Mills' committee and a favorable House vote.

Other bills awaiting final deal with meat inspection, truth-in-lending, crime and federal pay raises.

continue working on the anti-poverty bill, with House spokesmen standing fast behind the House-approved amendment to place control of local Community Action agencies under state and local governments. Also to be settled is how much money the Office of Economic Opportunity is to get. The House has authorized $460 million less than the administration seeks.

House-Senate conferees also are working on the Social Security bill. The Senate's version would provide for considerably less.

The House has passed a foreign aid bill some $1 billion less than President Johnson's request. The Senate hasn't taken up the measure yet.

Other important pending bills include meat inspection, truth-in-lending, crime and federal pay raises.

Turkey Expected to Reject Greek Terms To Avert Military Showdown in Cyprus

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — U.S. Special envoy Cyrus R. Vance returned to Ankara today with Greece's answer to Turkish conditions for averting a military showdown over Cyprus. Informants said it appeared the Turks will reject it.

Battle-ready Turkish troops continued to wait aboard ships poised just 40 miles from the Mediterranean island republic said, and "what is efficient today for an invasion Vance and other diplomats were hopeful could be prevented."

"There's no call for a smile," Vance said after conferences with Greek officials in Athens. "But there is none for a frown."

Secretary-General Manlio Brosio of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was also in Ankara with reports of his talks with Greek officials. Brosio said there was hope the two NATO partners could be kept from war.

A Greek Foreign Ministry spokesman said his government told Vance it is willing to negotiate the withdrawal of Greek forces from Cyprus "in return for guarantees by Turkey not to attempt an invasion."

Greece will insist on international guarantees of any such agreement, the spokesman added, including commitments from the North Atlantic alliance and the United Nations.

Informal sources in Ankara said the Turkish demands Vance took to Athens included renewal of the special rights given the Turkish Cypriots by the 1960 agreement on the independence of Cyprus, rights which Cypriot President Makarios took away in 1963; withdrawal of non-Cypriot forces from the island, and Greek compensation for the attack Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish Cypriots were killed.

An informed source in Ankara said the key point to be resolved was timing of troop withdrawals. Turkey and Greece both reportedly accept the idea of withdrawing troops on Cyprus in excess of the number allowed by the 1960 agreement, but Turkey insists Greece must take her troops off first.

Greece is believed to have between 8,000 and 12,000 troops on Cyprus and Turkey about 1,200. The 1960 agreement allows seeking efforts.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS! BUT ONCE A YEAR

Friday (Nov. 24), the day after Thanksgiving, a 26-day Christmas shopping season.

CHRISTMAS HAS GOT TO BE a game that fancy stores play. They vie with each other for the luxurious, the expensive, the luxe, and the downright absurd.

Take Nieman-Marcus's His and Her gifts. Last year they were $4,000 bathtubs. This year they're a matched pair of desert camels at the rate of $4,125. Deliver time is "subject to availability of camels." Presumably those Texas oil types can use the camels on the way to the country club.

ON THAT HAPPY EVE when not even a mouse is stirring, chances are that under the tree for Madame will be a $7,800 compact. Hess's of Allentown has a $3,500 natural mink raincoat. This is a trifle complicated. Their press agent says: "When it stops raining, zip off the gabardine rain-shedding shell, turn the coat inside out, and voila -- there's a satin-lined mink coat." The store also has silk-lined kid evening gloves, elbow-length, at only $200 a pair.

THAT Dallas store wants her to have a $575 set of nomad pajamas, "a jeweled feast of plum and turquoise silk." Mark Cross, which says it will go to the ends of the earth for the best alligators, will sew up for Mama a Madagascar suitcase of belly skins for only $2,500.

She can also have from Bernardo of New York a $100,000 pair of sandals full of rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and diamonds. These are really practical because the jewels detach to become a bracelet, earrings, pin and ring. On balance, they sound like a better bargain than California's Carroll's bottle-green velvet sandals for the "Master of TV Hounds" at $37.

SPEAKING OF HIM, the beat goes on. How about, for openers, Russian Persian wool gloves with kangaroo leather palms lined with white rabbit fur at $49.95? By the way, shouldn't that be Iranian wool? -- mercantile prose is getting to be inaccurate as well as luscious.

N-M has for Pops an indoor-outdoor golf practice setup at a shabby $495 that looks a little like an amusement-park game. Tiffany would have you give the Master a boxed set of two silver snap-on bottle sealing caps to keep "the fizz in carbonated beverages." You could always cough up $150 for Churchill's mink and beaver hat, trimmed with a hand-stitched pheasant feather band.

NOW FOR THE FAMILY. Start off with Cartier's Oriental planter -- amethyst, agate, and 18 kt gold flowers, in a vase of Chilean lapis -- a shy $1,270. Parker will sell you a ball-point pen "made entirely of pieces of eight silver" at $50.

For the kids, Lord & Taylor has a modernistic European doll house at $75, which is probably more a bargain than it sounds at first. Faberge has a crocodile cosmetic case for anybody in the house at $1,000.

Steuhen Glass has a three-piece crystal sculpture, "Jazz," at a pedestrian $7,500. And for the family which roughs it together, Abercrombie & Fitch, with its "40,000 Miles of Christmas," has a chemical airlines toilet at $225. Another nice thing to keep in mind is a used chateau in France for a marked-down $150,000. Maybe it's just as well that Santa comes but once a year.

Polluted air affects people who have chronic respiratory diseases. Fight for cleaner air with your Christmas Seal contribution.

Whatever else may be said of him French President Charles de Gaulle has done a magnificent job of taking care of himself.

One of the odd things about him is that he is such an arrogant, stiff and unbending individual that he might have said almost anything preposterous attributed to him.

"Before giving any speech of making a decision," he is quoted as saying, "I always ask myself, would General de Gaulle approve of it?"

Stuff? Impossible? Haughty? Out of Character? Not for the French president, who became 77 Wednesday.

The quotation is from a book, "The Tragedy of the General".

Its author, J. R. Tournoux, is considered to be France's foremost authority on de Gaulle. Other mots attributed to the aging French leader: "The French are weak, cowardly and intelligent."

"The Americans are strong, courageous and stupid."

If the general never said that, he most certainly could have.

On this side of the Atlantic, De Gaulle's ventures in diplomacy this year in Canada, Poland and the Middle East approved less than triumphant. In France it has been argued that he deliberately set out to irritate his domestic critics. By making them show their hand, the argument goes, the general solidified his support among the pro-Gaullist majority.

De Gaulle will provide political analysts with additional food for thought Tuesday when he is scheduled to hold a semi-annual press conference, always carefully stage managed by the president himself.

He is expected to have something critical to say about Great Britain's application to join the European Economic Community to direct a few arrows dipped in poison at United States foreign policy and this country's role in the war in Vietnam. One thing can be said in De Gaulle's favor. Before he became president there was rioting in the streets as there has been recently in the United States.

When he took office all that stopped.

SENATOR LONG'S FEES

Two very interesting testimonial dinners were held in St. Louis last week, one for Senator Edward V. Long and one for Representative Thomas B. Curtis, his prospective Republican opponent.

The Curtis dinner was sponsored by bankers, corporation executives and other representatives of the business community who made it clear they regard Mr. Curtis as one of their own. Senator Long was the guest of a teamster, steamfitter, electrician and other union leaders who obviously look on the Senator as their man.

Mr. Curtis is not to be judged solely by his corporation support and Mr. Long is not to be judged solely by his labor support. Ordinary voters have a right to ask, however, that each prove himself qualified to represent something broader than the special interests that are so conspicuous in their campaigns.

In Mr. Long's case there is a complicating factor. The country banker-politician from Clarksville not only has the allegiance of urban labor, but a history of having received substantial and regular fees, since going to Washington, from a lawyer closely connected with the teamsters and steamfitters.

Nearly seven of every 10 United States Senators are lawyers, and many of them in one degree or another engage in active practice. It need not be assumed that all such practice is improper to acknowledge that an ethical problem exists when legislators who daily act on matters of vital import to various economic interests may also serve the same interests in their private capacity. The problem deserves the most serious study by Congress and the bar alike.

If Mr. Curtis ever turned out to have been receiving fees of $2000 a month from a lawyer for the banks and corporations whose executives support him, eyebrows would be justifiably raised. Senator Long cannot complain if doubts linger over his relationship with Morris A. Shenker, even though the Senate Ethics Committee, so far, anyway, has absolved him of impropriety.

Mr. Long entered the Senate in 1960. Since 1961, Mr. Shenker has paid him more than $140,000. The Senator says the money represented his share of legal fees collected from five of his clients whom he turned over to Mr. Shenker. Yet when the names of the clients were published by the Ethics Committee they all looked much more like Mr. Shenker's clients than Mr. Long's.

Three were companies in which Mr. Shenker had been a director or organizer. One was a long-time associate of his. In the fifth case, Mr. Shenker filed a statement with the court that he was the client's sole attorney. How are these facts to be reconciled with the contention that the cases originated with Senator Long?

Other questions arise. Did Senator Long share any fees with Mr. Shenker prior to his becoming a Senator? Has he shared fees with any other lawyers since that time? Precisely what legal work did he do to earn his fees in the five known cases?

Such questions deserve candid answers. We do not believe it has been proved that Senator Long used his wiretapping investigation to the benefit of Jimmy Hoffa of the Teamsters union. On the record so far, we think he performed a useful public service in that inquiry, and do not question his motives. But he owes the public a fuller explanation of the Shenker fees.

Shortly before the Navy-Syracuse football game on Oct. 14, Dodo was fitted at the academy tailor shop for a Navy blanket with the gold "N" on the top and gold letters reading "Bite Army" on either side. It was formally presented to him at a pep rally preceding the game and he has faithfully worn it ever since as he watches proudly from the sidelines.

With the blanket and its official recognition came another luxury grudgingly accorded by academy officials who still are rankled at the esteem in which the brigade hold him.

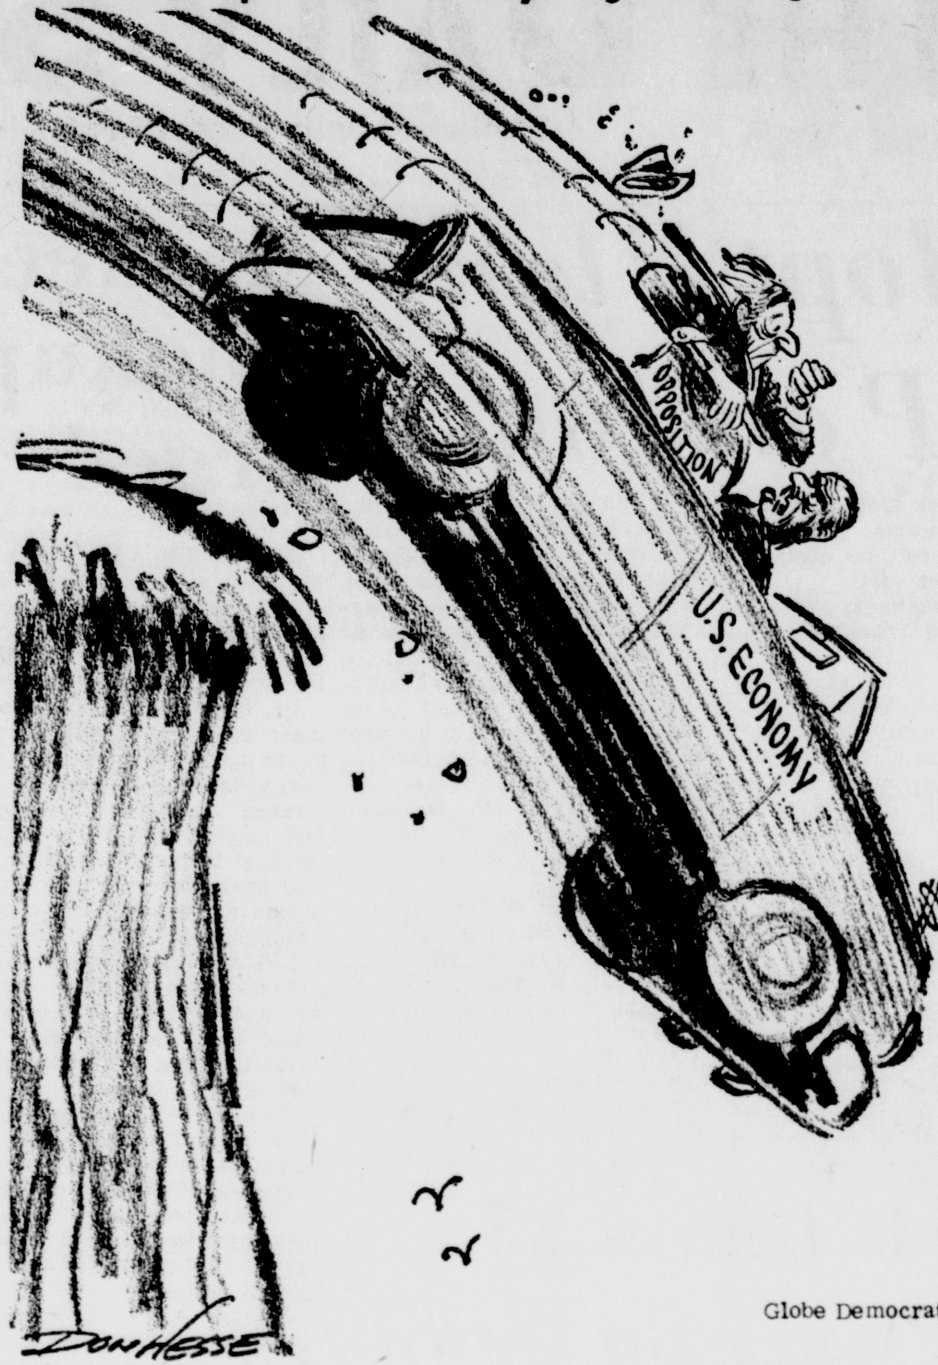

Instead of prancing along with the midshipmen as they march, with the blanket and its official recognition came another luxury grudgingly accorded by academy officials who still are rankled at the esteem in which the brigade hold him.

An academy official, one of those who still refuses to admit that the tiny mongrel dog has long since replaced the Navy goat in the eyes of the brigade, made it emphatically clear that Dodo would not receive official transportation to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday.

"But," he signed, "I know that just as sure as the sun comes up tomorrow that dog will be there if the midshipmen have to smuggle him up."

When you are shooting photographs this season for your Christmas greeting cards, don't forget to make some extra shots for use next year. It is possible to let time pass so that you do not have proper planning for your year-end greetings. By taking some extra shots this year, however, you will have something left over when the time comes around again in 12 months.

THE LESSONS OF HISTORY
Thoughtful leaders in and out of public life are increasingly concerned by the spreading indifference to fundamental political and economic principles that are the basis of freedom and progress. Mr. L. W. Moore, president of the American Oil Company, has discussed this greatest of all problems. In commenting on the widely-held attitude that profit is unnecessary -- he said, "...there can be no effective alliance between a social conscience and an empty purse. Those with deep concern for the welfare of people must be persuaded of this essential truth. Unless business and industry are encouraged to grow and prosper--and are able to attract enough talented people to make this possible--we may sacrifice the major force in the growth and prosperity of our nation and the world."

It's evident that Americans today display greater courtesy toward national figures and a greater veneration for national symbols than ever before in history. Consider Thomas Jefferson's fans: In the words of his steward at Monticello: "I have often sent a wagonload of hay up to the stable and the next morning there would not be enough to make a bird's nest. I have killed a fine beef and it would be all eaten in a day or two."

After Jefferson's death, his daughter was forced to sell Monticello to pay his debts... Or Andrew Jackson's fans, exhibiting their admiration at his inauguration; 20,000 of them followed the popular hero down Pennsylvania Avenue and into the White House itself. They clambered over silk chairs with muddy boots, became involved in fist fights, overturned delicate furniture, smashed china.

Ladies fainted from the crush, and Andrew Jackson himself, victor over 5400 British troops at New Orleans, had to sneak out a back door in order to get his constituents to calm down and go home. As to respect for national symbols, early in our history the Rotunda of the United States Capitol, for which neither House nor Senate would assume responsibility, became a veritable woman's land in which peddlers moved in and sold apple peels, corn shellers and panoramic views of Paris.

"Lulu, baby -- don't you think you'd better get a haircut? You're beginning to look like a boy."

A man in Alaska was arrested for bigamy. He had a wife in Nome, another in Fairbanks and still another in Juneau. The Judge looked at the culprit sternly and asked, "How could you do such a

the world."

It is not impossible even in this so-called enlightened age for the individual to lose his freedom and become submerged in a medieval philosophy such as prevailed in Shakespeare's time, when the object of life of the ordinary citizen was, in the words of author Robert Hellbroner, "...not to advance his station in life, but to maintain it."

Businessmen must take the lead in preserving the system under which we have all prospered and enjoyed a maximum of liberty and opportunity. Businessmen and all others in a position of leadership must, as the oil company executive points out, remind people that "...until the advent of the market system--until the profit motive achieved a measure of respectability and became a way of life--the waking hours of most of mankind were absorbed in a desperate and often futile effort to survive."

As we hear more and more talk of impending controls to combat inflation, we cannot afford to forget the lessons of history.

It's evident that Americans today display greater courtesy toward national figures and a greater veneration for national symbols than ever before in history. Consider Thomas Jefferson's fans: In the words of his steward at Monticello: "I have often sent a wagonload of hay up to the stable and the next morning there would not be enough to make a bird's nest. DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Kefauver Protests Abandons Estes's High Standards; Sen. McIntyre Champions Big Banks; LBJ Is Resigned to Slow Progress in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Tom McIntyre of New Hampshire bears the distinction of having been the first Democratic senator to hold office from that state in 30 years; also, to have been elected as the protégé of the late crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

After McIntyre was elected and about to permit certain oil companies to make up his campaign deficit, Kefauver stepped in to help raise the money. Instead, he didn't want the young senator from New Hampshire to become indebted to the oil and gas lobby.

Sen. Kefauver is dead now, and his onetime pupil has turned away from the crusading guidance of his teacher. McIntyre has become the strange champion of the banking lobby.

He has introduced an amendment to the Mutual Fund Reform Bill which, believe it or not, would undermine one of the most important pieces of legislation passed in the first year of the New Deal -- namely, the Glass-Steagall Act of 1933.

The Glass-Steagall Act prohibits the Federal Reserve member banks from engaging in the security business (including mutual funds). It was this trading which helped cause the stock market crash of 1929.

Despite the Glass-Steagall Act, big banks have managed to play the stock market through the security transactions of their so-called trust departments. Now Sen. McIntyre's amendment would further broaden security trading by permitting banks openly to engage in the mutual fund business.

The amendment also would take the First National City Bank of New York, third largest commercial bank in the nation, off a painful hook.

Slow, slogging war -- President Johnson told friends following his talks with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. William Westmoreland, that the United States has no alternative but to buckle down to a slow, slogging war in Vietnam. He predicted modest military gains in 1968 but no dramatic victory. He also saw no signs from Hanoi that the North Vietnamese are interested in serious peace negotiations. Any presidential candidate who promises a quick or easy solution to the Vietnam war, he said, will be deceiving the public.

African Graft -- One problem that has been holding back the development of African nations has been the corruption of their leaders. President Mobutu of the Congo, for instance, has a financial interest in a number of private enterprises in his country. His ministers and aides drive more Cadillacs than can be found in any other African capital.

Aid for North Vietnam -- Intelligence reports claim that Chinese and Russian technicians are working closely together in Kunming to speed the flow of Soviet supplies across China to North Vietnam. The Chinese-Russian feud, according to these reports, no longer is interfering with North Vietnam's main pipeline.

Shipping Lobby -- A proposed $700 million-a-year boost in subsidies to U. S. shipyards and ship lines is running into sharp opposition in Congress because of the economy drive. As a result, shipping lobbyists are putting the heat on Senate and House members. The heat will increase from now until adjournment.

Once upon a time, so the story goes, the fence between Heaven and Hell broke down. St. Peter appeared at the broken section and called out to the devil: "Hey, Satan, since all the engineers are over in your place, how about getting them to fix this fence?"

"Sorry," replied Satan, "my men are all too busy to go about fixing measly fences."
"Well, then," replied St. Peter, "I'll have to sue you if you don't."
"Oh, yeah," countered the devil, "and where are you going to get a lawyer?"

I sure told the boss where to get off today.
If you'd like to get off right here at the office, sir, I'll be glad to drive your car to the garage.

COMMUNISTS IN THE OPEN
Freedomists must look at facts and act on the basis of what they see. The time to save freedom is too short for them to spend precious hours or days telling one another how bad things really are.

One fact that must be recognized is that the Communist Party in the United States has made gains during the last two years. The party has been enabled to come out in the open by the November 1965 decision of the U. S. Supreme Court decision invalidating much of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, which was passed by congress to force the party and its members to register and disclose the party's financial affairs.

The court decision knocked out the principal safeguard erected by Congress against the overt operation of communists in the United States.

The Communist Party USA now has about 13,000 members, a gain of about 2,000 over its total two years ago. One leader says 3,000 young people have been recruited during that period, mostly from the "New Left." The party has opened offices in Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco. In these cities people are invited to visit party offices, and the party is openly distributing membership application blanks. Plans have been announced for the Communist newspaper, The Worker, to resume daily publications next spring after it has functioned as a semi-weekly for several years. These gains in official membership can be considered only a barometer as the sympathizers and the workers and stooges in "fronts" accomplish more for the party than the party members can accomplish. Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

CHAOS ON WHEELS
Hell's Angels' Crowd Rips Up Production, Defies Union Chiefs and Executive Suites Alike
Washington, D. C. -- Chaos is a motorcyclist riding his speed bike into the midst of a union meeting to whom it up for rebellion. Chaos is a band of long-haired, black-booted, black-jacketed motorcyclists arriving for "work" at an Eastern plant.

Chaos is an inner-plant series of drag races in which the sporting element on the night races towards each other in small electric carts to see who'll chicken out first.

Chaos is what will hit this nation, just as it appears to be hitting the great British people, unless national union leaders and corporate personnel men stop chickening out.

Chaos is the "Hell's Angels" subversion, the tough "In crowd" which one national labor chief calls "the ever youthening" work force which will average 25 years of age by the 70s -- and which now averages 27 to 28 years.

These workers in their twenties are so new they make the men and women of the 30 to 40-year-old generation appear like grizzled veterans. Because the younger people's seniority is low they get the least desirable jobs, the worst of the shifts, the lowest of the grades. They slow production. They sometimes endanger their own lives and the limbs of others.

There is one ever itinerant union official who is constantly harassed by the cyclists who come in packs to a plant so strategic the Vietnam war couldn't be fought for very long -- especially in the air -- if they were shut down. Yet the boys come, hair flowing, an earring in one lobe, storm trooper jackets jauntily affixed and attitude defiant. If they are admonished by management they cry "unfair labor practice" and they push their union stewards around.

In another plant, some of the second shift ladies pack martini mix in their coffee jugs and slip at the machines.

No union leader is immune. It has gone unnoticed that even the redoubtable Douglas Fraser, director of the United Auto Workers' Chrysler division -- a chap who insiders predict will succeed Walter Reuther -- was pushed around by some Hell's Angels defiant ones when he tried to get them back to work at the vital Sterling Township stamping plant outside Detroit.

That was on Nov. 13 in East Detroit's Roma Hall. One unionist rode into the auditorium on his motorbike. Others set off big firecrackers which sounded like H1 875 under rocket attack. Others stomped, hooted, and shouted "Hey, Doug, baby," and "the hell with that cat."

Of course, Hell's Angels don't make up the whole of the generation. But there are enough of them to paralyze a local union while can be so strategic that an entire corporation can bog down until the workers return to a single set of machines. If seven or, at most, eight key plants are ever paralyzed at the same time, the entire car manufacturing industry would have to shut up shop.

More and more, the hell-with-authority spreads -- unnoticed except by those close by. More and more, it becomes a national sport -- unnoticed except when a huge section of a national industry is crippled and Congress or the White House must move in.

More and more, the hell-with-authority spreads -- unnoticed except by those close by. More and more, it becomes a national sport -- unnoticed except when a huge section of a national industry is crippled and Congress or the White House must move in.

More and more, this nation's inner travail becomes reminiscent of what I have observed in England year after year.

At virtually the same moment when the rebels were booing Doug Fraser's dramatic efforts to get 103,000 employees back to work throughout the Chrysler network by convincing the Sterling Township Local 1264 to return, a General Motors plant in St. Louis was hit.

There, according to the Pentagon official in charge, Col. Frank Hertzog, one man refused to accept new work procedures, approved by his union leaders and management. The loner walked out, talked some 40 others into joining him in a rump strike, and soon they had 1,700 out. It was at the Chevrolet shop making artillery castings for the Vietnamese front.

This paralleled what happened at the harassed Ford plant in Dagenham, England, right outside London. One man refused to change his tools in the crankshaft and camshaft machining area there. He was sent home. Soon many of the 20,000 workers were out. A vital section of the plant was "down."

A few weeks later, so was the pound. Of course, British economy was not shaken by this one stoppage. There have been hundreds. Some were reminiscent of the Fremont, Calif., "Incident" at the General Motors plant there. The workers did not like something the personnel and labor relations chief said. So 4,800 struck. It appears that the British shop steward sickness is contagious.

These rebellions are not isolated. They multiply. They're costly. And they worry labor's national leadership which has been hit by an "authority gap" more than by a generation gap. If the Hell's Angels crowd, as it "youthens," continues to kick the gong around, they'll knock a bigger gap in the national economy, just as in Britain.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
BUT ONCE A YEAR

Friday (Nov. 24), the day after Thanksgiving, a 26-day Christmas shopping season.

CHRISTMAS HAS GOT TO BE a game that fancy stores play. They vie with each other for the luxurious, the expensive, the luxe, and the downright absurd.

Take Nieman-Marcus's His and Her gifts. Last year they were $4,000 bathtubs. This year they're a matched pair of desert camels at the rate of $4,125. Deliver time is "subject to availability of camels." Presumably those Texas oil types can use the camels on the way to the country club.

ON THAT HAPPY EVE when not even a mouse is stirring, chances are that under the tree for Madame will be a $7,800 compact. Hess's of Allentown has a $3,500 natural mink raincoat. This is a trifle complicated. Their press agent says: "When it stops raining, zip off the gabardine rain-shedding shell, turn the coat inside out, and voila -- there's a satin-lined mink coat." The store also has silkined kid evening gloves, elbow-length, at only $200 a pair.

THAT Dallas store wants Her to have a $575 set of nomad pajamas, "a jeweled feast of plum and turquoise silk." Mark Cross, which says it will go to the ends of the earth for the best alligators, will sew up for Mama a Madagascar suitcase of belly skins for only $2,500.

She can also have from Bernardo of New York a $100,000 pair of sandals full of rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and diamonds. These are really practical because the jewels detach to become a bracelet, earrings, pin and ring. On balance, they sound like a better bargain than California's Carroll's bottle-green velvet sandals for the "Master of TV Hounds" at $37.

SPEAKING OF HIM, the beat goes on. How about, for openers, Russian Persian wool gloves with kangaroo leather palms lined with white rabbit fur at $49.95? By the way, shouldn't that be Iranian wool? -- mercantile prose is getting to be inaccurate as well as luscious.

N-M has for Pops an indoor-outdoor golf practice setup at a shabby $495 that looks a little like an amusement-park game. Tiffany would have you give the Master a boxed set of two silver snap-on bottle sealing caps to keep "the fizz in carbonated beverages." You could always cough up $150 for Churchill's mink and beaver hat, trimmed with a hand-stitched pheasant feather band.

NOW FOR THE FAMILY. Start off with Cartier's Oriental planter -- amethyst, agate, and 18 kt gold flowers, in a vase of Chilean lapis -- a shy $1,270. Parker will sell you a ball-point pen "made entirely of pieces of eight silver" at $50.

For the kids, Lord & Taylor has a modernistic European doll house at $75, which is probably more a bargain than it sounds at first. Faberge has a crocodile cosmetic case for anybody in the house at $1,000.

Steuben Glass has a three-piece crystal sculpture, "Jazz," at a pedestrian $7,500. And for the family which roughs it together, Abercrombie & Fitch, with its "40,000 Miles of Christmas," has a chemical airlines toilet at $225. Another nice thing to keep in mind is a used chateau in France for a marked-down $150,000. Maybe it's just as well that Santa comes but once a year.

Polluted air affects people who have chronic respiratory diseases. Fight for cleaner air with your Christmas Seal contribution.

Whatever else may be said of him French President Charles de Gaulle has done a magnificent job of taking care of himself.

One of the odd things about him is that he is such an arrogant, stiff and unbending individual that he might have said almost anything preposterous attributed to him.

"Before giving any speech of making a decision," he is quoted as saying, "I always ask myself, would General de Gaulle approve of it?"

Stuffy? Impossible? Haughty? Out of Character? Not for the French president, who became 77 Wednesday.

The quotation is from a book, "The Tragedy of the General".

Its author, J. R. Tournoux, is considered to be France's foremost authority on de Gaulle.

Other mots attributed to the aging French leader: "The French are weak, cowardly and intelligent."

"The Americans are strong, courageous and stupid."

If the general never said that, he most certainly could have.

On this side of the Atlantic, De Gaulle's ventures in diplomacy this year in Canada, Poland and the Middle East approved less than triumphant. In France it has been argued that he deliberately set out to irritate his domestic critics. By making them show their hand, the argument goes, the general solidified his support among the pro-Gaullist majority.

De Gaulle will provide political analysts with additional food for thought Tuesday when he is scheduled to hold a semi-annual press conference, always carefully stage managed by the president himself.

He is expected to have something critical to say about Great Britain's application to join the European Economic Community to direct a few arrows dipped in poison at United States foreign policy and this country's role in the war in Vietnam. One thing can be said in De Gaulle's favor. Before he became president there was rioting in the streets as there has been recently in the United States.

When he took office all that stopped.

SENATOR LONG'S FEES

Two very interesting testimonial dinners were held in St. Louis last week, one for Senator Edward V. Long and one for Representative Thomas B. Curtis, his prospective Republican opponent.

The Curtis dinner was sponsored by bankers, corporation executives and other representatives of the business community who made it clear they regard Mr. Curtis as one of their own. Senator Long was the guest of a teamster, steamfitter, electrician and other union leaders who obviously look on the Senator as their man.

Mr. Curtis is not to be judged solely by his corporation support and Mr. Long is not to be judged solely by his labor support. Ordinary voters have a right to ask, however, that each prove himself qualified to represent something broader than the special interests that are so conspicuous in their campaigns.

In Mr. Long's case there is a complicating factor. The country banker-politician from Clarksville not only has the allegiance of urban labor, but a history of having received substantial and regular fees, since going to Washington, from a lawyer closely connected with the teamsters and steamfitters.

Nearly seven of every 10 United States Senators are lawyers, and many of them in one degree or another engage in active practice. It need not be assumed that all such practice is improper to acknowledge that an ethical problem exists when legislators who daily act on matters of vital import to various economic interests may also serve the same interests in their private capacity. The problem deserves the most serious study by Congress and the bar alike.

If Mr. Curtis ever turned out to have been receiving fees of $2000 a month from a lawyer for the banks and corporations whose executives support him, eyebrows would be justifiably raised. Senator Long cannot complain if doubts linger over his relationship with Morris A. Shenker, even though the Senate Ethics Committee, so far, anyway, has absolved him of impropriety.

Mr. Long entered the Senate in 1960. Since 1961, Mr. Shenker has paid him more than $140,000. The Senator says the money represented his share of legal fees collected from five of his clients whom he turned over to Mr. Shenker. Yet when the names of the clients were published by the Ethics Committee they all looked much more like Mr. Shenker's clients than Mr. Long's.

Three were companies in which Mr. Shenker had been a director or organizer. One was a long-time associate of his. In the fifth case, Mr. Shenker filed a statement with the court that he was the client's sole attorney. How are these facts to be reconciled with the contention that the cases originated with Senator Long?

Other questions arise. Did Senator Long share any fees with Mr. Shenker prior to his becoming a Senator? Has he shared fees with any other lawyers since that time? Precisely what legal work did he do to earn his fees in the five known cases?

Such questions deserve candid answers. We do not believe it has been proved that Senator Long used his wiretapping investigation to the benefit of Jimmy Hoffa of the Teamsters union. On the record so far, we think he performed a useful public service in that inquiry, and do not question his motives. But he owes the public a fuller explanation of the Shenker fees.

reads:

"Midshipman Dog was seen returning from Catholic chapel this morning. A glow of humility was noted in his eyes and he was obviously in penance to atone for missing morning meal on 13 May. He decided to anticipate this morning's formation and arrived 17 minutes early."

Shortly before the Navy-Syracuse football game on Oct. 14, Dodo was fitted at the academy tailor shop for a Navy blanket with the gold "N" on the top and gold letters reading "Bite Army" on either side. It was formally presented to him at a pep rally preceding the game and he has faithfully worn it ever since as he watches proudly from the sidelines.

With the blanket and its official recognition came another luxury grudgingly accorded by academy officials who still are rankled at the esteem in which the brigade hold him.

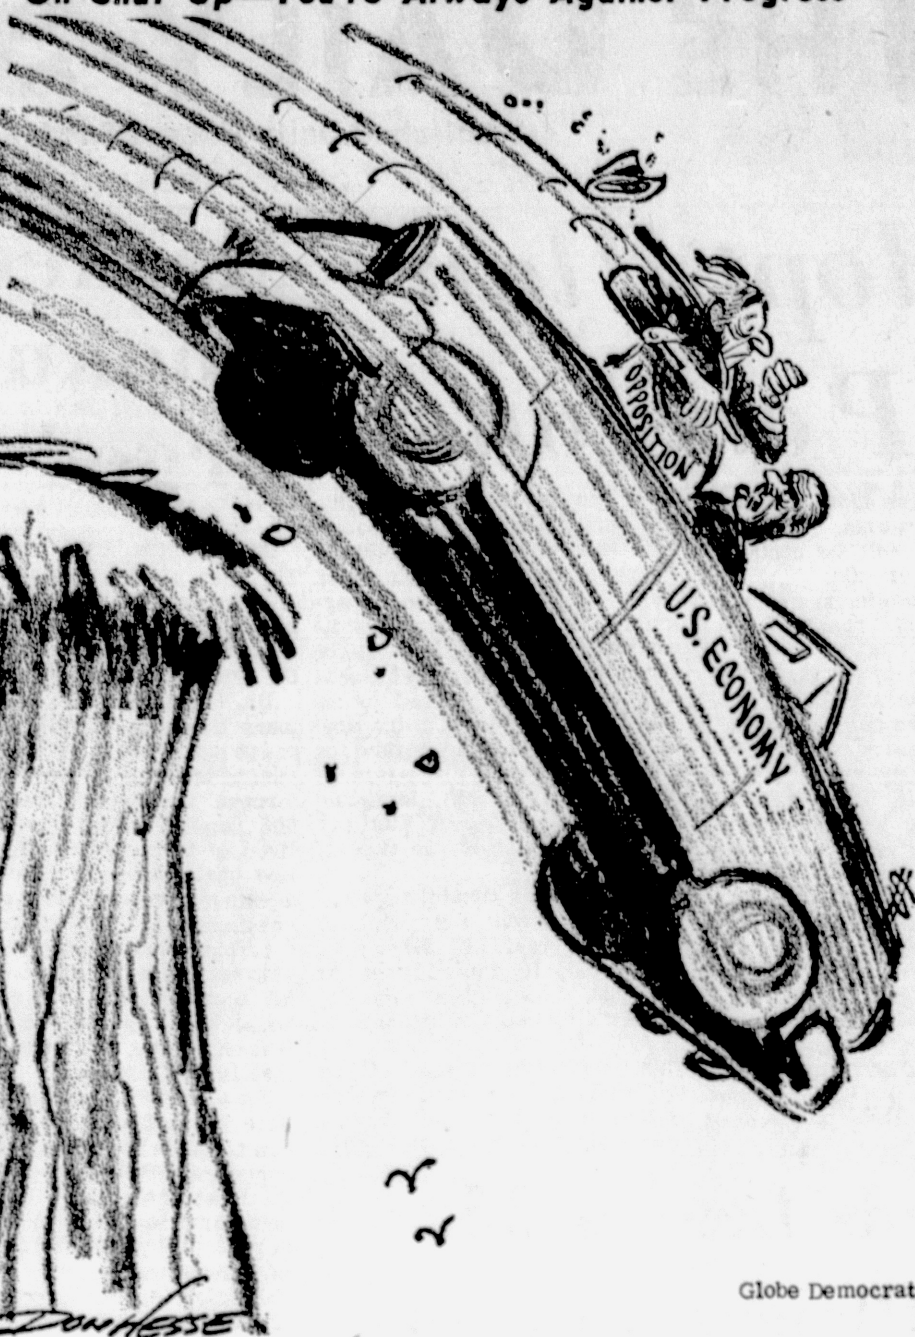

Instead of prancing along with the midshipmen as they march, Dodo now arrives in style, seated proudly on the backseat of a staff officer's sedan.

An academy official, one of those who still refuses to admit that the tiny mongrel dog has long since replaced the Navy goat in the eyes of the brigade, made it emphatically clear that Dodo would not receive official transportation to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday.

"But," he signed, "I know that just as sure as the sun comes up tomorrow that dog will be there if the midshipmen have to smuggle him up."

NOVEMBER 28 - TUESDAY
DAY OF THE PROCLAMATION
OF THE REPUBLIC. Nov. 28.
Republic of Chad.

When you are shooting photographs this season for your Christmas greeting cards, don't forget to make some extra shots for use next year. It is possible to let time pass so that you do not have proper planning for your year-end greetings. By taking some extra shots this year, however, you will have something left over when the time comes around again in 12 months.

THE LESSONS OF HISTORY
Thoughtful leaders in and out of public life are increasingly concerned by the spreading indifference to fundamental political and economic principles that are the basis of freedom and progress. Mr. L. W. Moore, president of the American Oil Company, has discussed this greatest of all problems. In commenting on the widely-held attitude that profit is unnecessary -- he said, "...there can be no effective alliance between a social conscience and an empty purse. Those with deep concern for the welfare of people must be persuaded of this essential truth. Unless business and industry are encouraged to grow and prosper--and are able to attract enough talented people to make this possible--we may sacrifice the major force in the growth and prosperity of our nation and the world."

It is not impossible even in this so-called enlightened age for the individual to lose his freedom and become submerged in a medieval philosophy such as prevailed in Shakespeare's time, when the object of life of the ordinary citizen was, in the words of author Robert Heilbroner, "...not to advance his station in life, but to maintain it."

Businessmen must take the lead in preserving the system under which we have all prospered and enjoyed a maximum of liberty and opportunity. Businessmen and all others in a position of leadership must, as the oil company executive points out, remind people that "...until the advent of the market system--until the profit motive achieved a measure of respectability and became a way of life--the waking hours of most of mankind were absorbed in a desperate and often futile effort to survive."

As we hear more and more talk of impending controls to combat inflation, we cannot afford to forget the lessons of history.

It's evident that Americans today display greater courtesy toward national figures and a greater veneration for national symbols than ever before in history. Consider Thomas Jefferson's fans: In the words of his steward at Monticello, "I have often sent a wagonload of hay up to the stable and the next morning there would not be enough to make a bird's nest. I have killed a fine beef and it would be all eaten in a day or two."

After Jefferson's death, his daughter was forced to sell Monticello to pay his debts. Or Andrew Jackson's fans, exhibiting their admiration at his inauguration, 20,000 of them followed the popular hero down Pennsylvania Avenue and into the White House itself. They clambered over silk chairs with muddy boots, became involved in fist fights, overturned delicate furniture, smashed china.

Ladies fainted from the crush, and Andrew Jackson himself, victor over 5400 British troops at New Orleans, had to sneak out a back door in order to get his constituents to calm down and go home. As to respect for national symbols, early in our history the Rotunda of the United States Capitol, for which neither House nor Senate would assume responsibility, became a veritable noman's land in which peddlers moved in and sold apple peels, corn shellers and panoramic views of Paris.

"Lulu, baby -- don't you think you'd better get a haircut? You're beginning to look like a boy."

A man in Alaska was arrested for bigamy. He had a wife in Nome, another in Fairbanks and still another in Juneau. The judge looked at the culprit sternly and asked, "How could you do such a

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY: Kefauver Pro- tege Abandons Estes's High Stand- ards; Sen. Tom McIntyre Cham- pions Big Banks; LBJ is Resigned to Slow Progress in Vietnam.

WASHINGTON -- Sen. Tom Mc- Intyre of New Hampshire bears the distinction of having been the first Democratic senator to hold office from that state in 30 years; also, to have been elected as the protege of the late crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

After McIntyre was elected and was about to permit certain oil companies to make up his campaign deficit, Kefauver stepped in to help raise the money instead. He didn't want the young senator from New Hampshire to become indebted to the oil and gas lobby.

Sen. Kefauver is dead now and his onetime pupil has turned away from the crusading guidance of his teacher. McIntyre has become the strange champion of the banking lobby.

He has introduced an amendment to the Mutual Fund Reform Bill which, believe it or not, would undermine one of the most important pieces of legislation passed in the first year of the New Deal -- namely, the Glass- Steagall Act of 1933.

The Glass-Steagall Act prohibits the Federal Reserve member banks from engaging in the security business (including mutual funds). It was this trading which helped cause the stock market crash of 1929.

Despite the Glass-Steagall Act, big banks have managed to play the stock market through the security transactions of their so-called trust departments. Now Sen. McIntyre's amendment would further broaden security trading by permitting banks openly to engage in the mutual fund business.

The amendment also would take the First National City Bank of New York, third largest commercial bank in the nation, off a painful hook.

could not legally operate a cottage industry account, because such an account was virtually the same as a mutual fund, and therefore violated the Glass- Steagall Act of 1933.

Less than six weeks after this decision, the McIntyre Amendment, which would nullify this office from that state in 30 years; also, to have been elected as the protege of the late crusading Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee.

The man pushing it was none other than Jack Yingling, lobbyist for First National City Bank of New York, and former staff director of the same committee that is now handling the Mutual Fund Reform Bill -- the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Significantly, Yingling was one of the lobbyists who helped put the Bank Merger Bill through two years ago. If he scores again, by obtaining Congressional approval of the McIntyre Amendment, it would give big banks an even tighter grip on our economy.

Banks today have total assets of over $215 billion in their trust departments. Between one-third and one-half of this figure is invested in common stocks, which creates a tremendous impact on the economy in general and the stock market in particular. To give banks an open door into the Mutual Fund Industry (roughly $45 billion in assets) would increase this power.

Sen. McIntyre, the man who wants to give them more investment power, has himself become a power in New Hampshire legal and investment circles. His highly successful law firm now represents the following clients:

Cormier Hosiery Mills, Inc.; Fenwick Hosiery Mills; Sulloway Industries, Inc.; Laconia Shoe Co.; The Central New Hampshire Die Co.; two banks -- Laconia Savings and The Pittsfield Savings; Belknap Sulloway Mills; Eastman Foundry Co.; Techwood, a division of U. S. Plywood; Gilbert Publishing, Inc.; Belknap Tire Co.; Gilbert Construction

Co.; National Reinforced Plastics; Knitting Techniques Inc.; and Corkay Inc.

Note -- Sen. McIntyre cast a favorable vote for Sen. Tom Dodd, D-Conn., during the preliminary showdown over Dodd's censure.

Dodd was criticized in part for mixing his law firm's affairs with his Senate voting.

--CAPITAL NEWS CAPSULES-- Slow, slogging war -- President Johnson told friends following his talks with Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Gen. William Westmoreland, that the United States has no alternative but to buckle down to a slow, slogging war in Vietnam. He predicted modest military gains in 1968 but no dramatic victory. He also saw signs from Hanoi that the North Vietnamese are interested in serious peace negotiations. Any presidential candidate who promises a quick or easy solution to the Vietnam war, he said, will be deceiving the public.

African Graft -- one problem that has been holding back the development of African nations has been the corruption of their leaders. President Mobutu of the Congo, for instance, has a financial interest in a number of private enterprises in his country. His ministers and aides drive more Cadillacs than can be found in any other African capital.

Aid for North Vietnam -- intelligence reports claim that Chinese and Russian technicians are working closely together in Kunming to speed the flow of Soviet supplies across China to North Vietnam. The Chinese-Russian feud, according to these reports, no longer is interfering with North Vietnam's main pipeline.

Shipping Lobby -- a proposed $700 million-a-year boost in subsidies to U. S. shipyards and ship lines is running into sharp opposition in Congress because of the economy drive. As a result, shipping lobbyists are putting the heat on Senate and House members. The heat will increase from now until adjournment.

thing?"
Replied the Bigamist, "Fast dog team."

HELP! The Washington news- papers report that the Medical Aid Committee for Vietnam has sent a $500 check to help the Vietcong. This was the group that solicited blood donations on the campus of University of California at Berkeley for "all vic- tims" of the Vietnam war. When the Red Cross declined to deliver said blood, the MACV raised the $500 "for medical supplies for the victims of U. S. aggression in Vietnam." Such overwrought youth need a rest -- a long one in Hanoi.

SUE THE DEVIL?
Once upon a time, so the story goes, the fence between Heaven and Hell broke down. St. Peter appeared at the broken section and called out to the devil:

"Hey, Satan, since all the en- gineers are over in your place, how about getting them to fix this fence?"

"Sorry," replied Satan, "my men are all too busy to go about fixing measly fences."
"Well, then," replied St. Peter, "I'll have to sue you if you don't."
"Oh, yeah," countered the devil, "and where are you going to get a lawyer?"

I sure told the boss where to get off today.
If you'd like to get off right here at the office, sir, I'll be glad to drive your car to the garage.

An eighth-grader, assigned to write the usual first-of-the-year theme entitled "My Autobiography," wrote: "My Autobiography - For eight years I've been writing autobiographies."

A car came to a stop in mid- town Manhattan, and the driver asked a man on the curb, "Say, mister, where's 42nd St.?"
"I'm a pedestrian," the man replied, "I don't help automo- biles!"

Gramp, how come everybody quit blaming the President for the war and hopped on the lawmakers? Wal, Si, he won the office on a peace ticket by a landslide and the ink didn't get dry on the bal- lots till he betrayed the people and oscelated the war, and now is the biggest hawk of em all tryin to brainwash everybody and everybody decided they weren't no pint in persuin the Jack-o-lantern no furdur. H.L. Hunt Says

COMMUNISTS IN THE OPEN
Freedomists must look at facts and act on the basis of what they see. The time to save freedom is too short for them to spend pre- cious hours or days telling one another how bad things really are.

One fact that must be recog- nized is that the Communist Party in the United States has made gains during the last two years. The party has been en- abled to come out in the open by the November 1965 decision of the U. S. Supreme Court decision invalidating much of the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, which was passed by Congress to force the party and its members to register and dis- close the party's financial af- fairs.

The court decision knocked out the principal safeguard erected by Congress against the overt operation of communists in the United States.

The Communist Party USA now has about 13,000 members, a gain of about 2,000 over its total two years ago. One leader says 3,000 young people have been recruited during that period, mostly from the "New Left." The party has opened offices in Chicago, Cleve- land, Detroit, Los Angeles and San Francisco. In these cities people are invited to visit party offices, and the party is openly distributing membership ap- plication blanks. Plans have been announced for the Communist newspaper, The Worker, to re- sume daily publications, next spring after it has functioned as a semi-weekly for several years. These gains in official member- ship can be considered only a barometer as the sympathizers and the workers and stooges in "fronts" accomplish more for the party than the party mem- bers can accomplish. Inside Labor

CHAOS ON WHEELS
Hell's Angels' Crowd Rips Up Production, Defies Union Chiefs and Executive Suites Alike
Washington, D. C. -- Chaos is a motorcyclist riding his speed bike into the midst of a union meeting to whom it up for re- bellion. Chaos is a band of long- haired, black-booted, black-jack- eted motorcyclists arriving for "work" at an Eastern plant.

Chaos is an inner-plant series of drag races in which the sporting element on the right races to- wards each other in small electric carts to see who'll chicken out first.

Chaos is what will hit this nation, just as it appears to be hitting the great British people, unless national union leaders and cor- porate personnel men stop chickening out.

Chaos is the "Hell's Angels" subjugation, the tough "in crowd" which one national labor chief calls "the ever youth- ening" work force which will average 25 years of age by the 70s -- and which now averages 27 to 28 years.

These workers in their twenties are so new they make the men and women of the 30 to 40-year-old generation appear like grizz- ly veterans. Because the younger people's seniority is low they get the least desirable jobs, the worst of the shifts, the lowest of the grades. They slow pro- duction. They sometimes en- danger their own lives and the limbs of others.

There is one ever itinerant union official who is constantly harassed by the cyclists who come in packs to a plant so strategic the Vietnam war couldn't be fought for very long -- especially in the air -- if it were shut down. Yet the boys come, hair flowing, an earring in one lobe, storm trooper jack- ets lustily affixed and attitude defiant. If they are admonished by management they cry "unfair labor practice" and they push their union stewards around.

In another plant, some of the second shift ladies pack martial mix in their coffee jugs and sip at the machines.

No union leader is immune. It has gone unnoticed that even the redoubtable Douglas Fraser, di- rector of the United Auto Workers' Chrysler division -- a chap who insiders predict will succeed Walter Reuther -- was pushed around by some Hell's Angels defiant ones when he tried to get them back to work at the vital Sterling Township stamp- ing plant outside Detroit.

That was on Nov. 13 in East Detroit's Rona Hall. One unionist rode into the auditorium on his motorbike. Others set off big firecrackers which sounded like Hell 875 under rocket attack. Others stomped, hooted, and shouted "Hey, Doug, baby," and "the hell with that cat."

Of course, Hell's Angels don't make up the whole of the genera- tion. But there are enough of them to paralyze a local union while can be so strategic, that an entire corporation can bog down until the workers return to a single set of machines. If seven or, at most, eight key plants are ever paralyzed at the same time, the entire car manufacturing in- dustry would have to shut up shop.

More and more, the hell-with- authority spread -- unnoticed except by those close by. More and more, it becomes a national sport -- unnoticed except when a huge section of a national in- dustry is crippled and Congress or the White House must move in.

More and more, the hell-with- authority spread -- unnoticed except by those close by. More and more, it becomes a national sport -- unnoticed except when a huge section of a national in- dustry is crippled and Congress or the White House must move in.

More and more, this nation's inner travail becomes reminis- cent of what I have observed in England year after year.

At virtually the same moment when the rebels were booing Doug Fraser's dramatic efforts to get 103,000 employees back to work throughout the Chrysler network by convincing the Sterling Town- ship Local 1264 to return, a General Motors plant in St. Louis was hit.

There, according to the Pentagon official in charge, Col. Frank Hertzog, one man refused to accept new work procedures, approved by his union leaders and the management. The loner walked out, talked some 40 others into joining him in a ramp strike, and soon they had 1,700 out. This was at the Chevrolet shop making artillery casings for the Viet- namese forces.

This paralleled what happened at the harassed Ford plant in Dagenham, England, right outside London. One man refused to change his tools in the crank- shaft and camshaft machining area there. He was sent home. Soon many of the 20,000 workers were out. A vital section of the plant was "down."

A few weeks later, so was the pound. Of course, British economy was not shaken by this one stoppage. There have been hundreds, some were reminiscent of the Fremont, Calif., "incident" at the General Motors plant there. The workers did not lack something the per- sonnel and labor relations chief said. So 4,800 struck. It appears that the British shop steward sickness is contagious.

These rebellions are not isolated. They multiply. They're costly. And they worry labor's national leadership, which has been hit by an "authority gap" more than by a generation gap. If the Hell's Angels crowd, as it "youth-ens," continues to kick the gong around, they'll knock a bigger gap in the nation's economy, just as in Britain, it

Tourneys Open at Kennett, Bernie

Area high school basketball action picks up steam this week with two eight-team events beginning tonight at Kennett and Bernie.

The Southeast Missouri Conference tourney at Kennett marks the season debut of most class I teams, including Coach N. P. McDaniel's Sikeston Bulldogs.

Top seeded Kennett kicks off the conference event at 7 p.m. against Jackson. Another clash at 8:30 p.m. pits fourth ranked Dexter against Cape Girardeau Central. Sikeston is third seeded and bows in against Charleston in the feature game of the first round at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, following a 7 p.m. opening contest between second ranked Poplar Bluff and Perryville.

Action in the Bernie invitational opens with No. 2 rated Howardville facing Lilbourn tonight at 7 p.m. Third ranked Bloomfield takes on New Madrid at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday's first round finales send top seeded Matthews against Parma at 7 p.m. and No. 4 Doniphan against Bernie at 8:30 p.m.

No games are slated Wednesday. A consolation bracket for first round losers will extend the Semo Conference event through Saturday night. Semifinals Thursday and finals Friday complete the season wounding up Saturday night at Wardell with host North Pemiscot topping Portageville, 78-50 for the consolation division title, and Clarkton taking first place honors with a 49-44 victory over Holcomb in the North Pemiscot invitational tournament.

Morris Fisher sparked North Pemiscot's win with 18 points and Danny Richardson paced Clarkton's championship win with 15. Scoring laurels, however, went to Kirk Stewart with 20 tallies for Portageville and Randall Crain with 22 for Holcomb.

Missouri All-Stars Win

ST. LOUIS -- The first chapter of what could mushroom into a celebrated gridiron rivalry was written Saturday at Busch Stadium when Missouri turned in a prize-winning 22-0 victory over Illinois in The Globe-Democrat's annual High School All-Star Football Classic.

"We knew we couldn't knock heads with them," Missouri coach Jack Kersting said later, referring to Illinois' weight advantage. "But we were able to beat them with deception and agility."

The deception was provided by David Scott, latest in a longline of outstanding quarterbacks from Jefferson City. A poised, ball-handling artist, the 5-9, 160-pound Scott flipped three touchdown passes to turn the tide, two of them to end Bob McCoolle of CBC.

For his efforts before an appreciative audience of 23,060,

Scott was named recipient of the David N. Grosberg trophy as Missouri's top player. Dave, who played behind All-State quarterback Mike Farmer last year, got his chance this season and guided Pete Adkins' Jays to a 9-0 record.

Scott, who finished with four completions in 13 attempts for 96 yards, and 205-pound fullback Mike McKee of Chaminade, the game's leading ball-carrier with 76 yards in 10 rushes, ignited the offensive unit also earned its share of glory. With the likes of Larry Wooden of Poplar Bluff, Doug Romine of Centralia, Kevin Shaner and Joe Walsh of St. Louis U. High and Larry Lewsader of Mt. Vernon outmaneuvering the heavier Illinois linemen, Missouri's defense allowed only 86 yards - and only 17 in the second half.

Most of that yardage was picked up at the outset of the game as coach Joe Jurkanin's Illinois team appeared ready to land an early knockout punch. "If we had scored on that first drive, it might have been a different story," Jurkanin said.

Skip Bailey of Cahokia took the opening kickoff on his 10th anniversary after the game to give and shook himself loose, returning the ball 68 yards to Missouri's 33. On the first play most as the outstanding player from scrimmage, fullback Dan Morris of Urbana bolted through John's Mercy Hospital at the half. The left side of his line and he returned later, however, to ramble 26 yards to the seven.

Hanging on the ropes, Missouri's defense stiffened. Three plays later, Illinois still was on the seven and quarterback Mike Curtis of Decatur attempted a 15-yard field goal - but it was wide of its mark.

As it turned out, Illinois never mounted another serious scoring threat in the contest. In fact, the East Siders never penetrated Missouri's 40-yard line until the waning seconds of the game by then, it was too late. Shaner's 39-yard punt gave Illinois possession of the ball on its 19 late in the first period. Two plays later, Edwardsville's Louis Johnson fumbled and line-backer Jim Lewis of Parkway recovered on the 14.

Taking advantage of a momentary psychological edged, Scott tossed a 14-yard touchdown strike to end Vic Phillips of Parkway on the first play. Bob Thomure of DeAndreis, who was listed as an "injured" performer Saturday after sustaining an ankle injury during practice, booted the extra point. Moments later, a Curtis pass was intercepted by California's Bob Asahl on the 42 and returned to Illinois' 13. But Illinois' defense met the challenge. On a fourth down and 14 situation, Thomure converted a 24-yard field goal attempt.

A gallant fourth-down stand by Missouri's defense late in the second quarter nearly paved the way for another score. On a fourth and one play with 2:35 remaining, Johnson was stopped cold and Missouri gained possession on Illinois' 29.

Scott and McCoolle, whose 61-yard scoring grab was the game-breaker as unbeaten CBC spilled arch-rival St. Louis U. High three weeks ago on the same field, 17-6, accounted for all of Missouri's points in the final 24 minutes of play. The scoring strikes covered 14 yards in the third quarter and 45 yards in the final period.

John Brown, Poplar Bluff's 210-pound All-State fullback, was in-land early in the game and sat out the rest of the action after gaining eight yards in two carries.

The Missouri squad, along with coach Jack Kersting, voted into the opening kickoff on his 10th anniversary after the game to give and shook himself loose, returning the ball 68 yards to Missouri's 33. On the first play most as the outstanding player from scrimmage, fullback Dan Morris of Urbana bolted through John's Mercy Hospital at the half. Bowl Battles Take Shape

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana Coach John Pont already has worked a miracle on the football field and now he seems to expect one off it.

Pont, whose Hoosiers won a trip to the Rose Bowl by shocking third-ranked Purdue 19-14 Saturday, said Sunday his team now would get a three-week rest and added:

"Our players now go back to leading normal lives."

This makes Pont either a supreme optimist or one of the greatest dry wits in Indiana since Herb Shriner.

Nothing even remotely connected with Indiana football has been normal since the season started.

The sophomore-loaded Hoosiers did the unexpected by winning their first eight games to make the Top Ten, did the expected by losing to Minnesota and dropping out of the national ranking and then did the unexpected again by beating Purdue.

Now the Hoosiers will face first-ranked Southern California, which finished the previous weekend with a 9-1 record - a task which shouldn't be much more difficult than that of returning to normal lives.

Indiana tied Purdue and Minnesota for the Big Ten title at 6-1, but the Hoosiers got the bowl bid because they have never been there. Minnesota, 8-2 over all, scored twice in the third quarter to beat Wisconsin 21-14. Purdue also finished at 8-2 over all.

All of the other major bowl pairings were completed Saturday.

Florida State, 7-2-1, nipped Florida 21-16 and was picked to meet Penn State, 8-2 and a 42-6 victor over Pittsburgh, in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., and Texas at El Paso, 6-2-1, trounced Utah 28-8 and was tabbed to play Mississippi, 5-3-1, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso. Both games will be played Dec. 30.

NFL Division Leaders Unchanged

By the Associated Press

Green Bay's burial brigade has made an early killing in the National Football League's Central Division.

But, if you ask Packer pundit Vince Lombardi, Chicago's Papa Bear is a very lively corpse.

Lombardi lauded George Halas, Chicago's 72-year-old owner-coach, Sunday after the Packers nailed down the Central title with a 17-13 verdict over the rugged Bears.

"Get this straight; he's an old man but he's a great man," Lombardi told newsmen in Chicago, where stories had been written suggesting Halas step down after 40 years as the Bears' pilot. "A lesser man might have given up after what happened to his team earlier in the year. But Halas doesn't know what it means."

"Instead of giving up, Mr. Halas turns around and gives the league its most improved team. The Bears are a great club, and I'm glad we clinched it against them."

While the Packers' hard-earned victory gave them an insurmountable 3 1/2-game lead in the Central Division, the Dallas closed in on the Capitol title, Cleveland clung to the Century lead and unbeaten Baltimore regained its one-game edge in the Coastal race.

New York flattened Philadelphia 44-7, dropping the Eagles three games off Dallas' Capitol pace with three games remaining. The Browns outscored Washington 42-37 to remain one game ahead of New York in the Century scramble. The Colts moved one game up on idle Los Angeles in the Coastal derby by trimming San Francisco 26-9 for a 9-0-2 mark.

Minnesota downed Pittsburgh 41-27 and New Orleans edged Atlanta 27-24 in other NFL games.

In American Football league play, Houston kept its Eastern Division pennant hopes alive with a 27-6 victory over Boston and Miami upended Buffalo 17-14.

Green Bay's defending NFL champs capitalized on Dave Robinson's pass interception and Travis Williams' 69-yard kickoff return for two first-half touchdowns, added a third-quarter field goal by Don Chandler and then held off the Bears for their eighth victory against two losses and one tie. The second-place Bears are 5-6.

Bart Starr passed five yards to Boyd Dowler for the Packers' first TD and Donny Anderson plunged one yard for the second. Chandler's 38-yard field goal followed Gale Sayers' fumble of a Pacer punt.

Sayers, however, rambled for 117 yards on 18 carries and scored the Bears' lone touchdown on a 43-yard jaunt. Two field goals by Mac Percival completed the Chicago scoring.

Scrambling Fran Tarkenton led the Giants, 6-5, on their biggest point binge in four years, passing for 261 yards and two touchdowns. Homer Jones caught two TD passes, including a 63-yarder that helped him become the first NFL receiver to go over the 1,000-yard mark this season.

Leroy Kelly topped the 1,000-yard plateau in rushing yardage, streaking for 163 yards and two touchdowns while helping Cleveland, 7-4, offset the red-hot passing of Redskin quarterback Sonny Jurgensen.

Jury hit on 32 of 50 tosses for 373 yards and three touchdowns. Carl Warr returned a kickoff 104 yards for the Browns' game-breaking touchdown.

Four field goals by Lou Michaels and Lenny Lyles' 36-yard scoring scamper with an intercepted pass carried the Colts past San Francisco. The 49ers, unable to penetrate Baltimore's tough defense, had to settle for three Tommy Davis field goals while dropping their sixth game against five victories.

Defensive back Karl Kasulke set up two Minnesota touchdowns by blocking a punt and recovering a fumble as the Vikings broke away from Pittsburgh in the final quarter with 21 points in just over two minutes.

Bill Kilmer's seven-yard TD pitch to Kent Kramer with 53 seconds to play shot the Saints past the Falcons in a Dixie dog-fight between the NFL's two newest franchises. Hoyle Granger romped for 124 yards and one touchdown; Pete Beathard flipped a two-yard scoring pass to Glenn Bass and John Wittenborn kicked three field goals as Houston, 6-3-1, moved within one game of New York's idle AFL Eastern Division leaders.

Rookie Bob Griese hooked up with Howard Twilley on a 31-yard scoring pass in the final minute, giving Miami its second AFL victory in 10 starts. The Dolphins are only one-half game behind the skidding Bills, who have dropped three in a row.

Bowl Battles Take Shape

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana Coach John Pont already has worked a miracle on the football field and now he seems to expect one off it.

Pont, whose Hoosiers won a trip to the Rose Bowl by shocking third-ranked Purdue 19-14 Saturday, said Sunday his team now would get a three-week rest and added:

"Our players now go back to leading normal lives."

This makes Pont either a supreme optimist or one of the greatest dry wits in Indiana since Herb Shriner.

Nothing even remotely connected with Indiana football has been normal since the season started.

The sophomore-loaded Hoosiers did the unexpected by winning their first eight games to make the Top Ten, did the expected by losing to Minnesota and dropping out of the national ranking and then did the unexpected again by beating Purdue.

Now the Hoosiers will face first-ranked Southern California, which finished the previous weekend with a 9-1 record—a task which shouldn't be much more difficult than that of returning to normal lives.

Indiana tied Purdue and Minnesota for the Big Ten title at 6-1, but the Hoosiers got the bowl bid because they have never been there. Minnesota, 8-2 overall, scored twice in the third quarter to beat Wisconsin 21-14. Purdue also finished at 8-2 overall.

All of the other major bowl pairings were completed Saturday.

Florida State, 7-2-1, nipped Florida 21-16 and was picked to meet Penn State, 8-2 and a 42-6 victor over Pittsburgh, in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., and Texas at El Paso, 6-2-1, trounced Utah 28-8 and was tabbed to play Mississippi, 5-3-1, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso. Both games will be played Dec. 30.

Life North Carolina State, which lost its last two games after winning the first eight, got some good news. The Wolfpack will meet Georgia, 7-3 and 21-14 conqueror of Georgia Tech, in the Liberty Bowl at Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 16.

Purdue wasn't the only member of the Top Ten to get upset Saturday.

Syracuse surprised fourth-ranked UCLA, 7-2-1, 32-14 as Rick Cassata ran for two TDs and passed for another pair and Tulsa got two second-half scoring passes from Mike Stribling and beat No. 10 Houston, 7-3, 22-13.

In the only other game involving a Top Ten team, five pass interceptions helped second-ranked Tennessee to a 17-7 victory over Kentucky. The Volunteers, 8-1, are headed for the Orange Bowl against No. 5 Oklahoma, 7-1-1, which beat Nebraska 21-14 Thanksgiving Day.

Seventh-ranked Wyoming, 10-0 and bound for the Sugar Bowl against Louisiana State, which beat Tulane 41-27, and No. 9 Alabama, 7-1-1, headed for the Cotton Bowl against idle Texas A&M, did not play Saturday.

Eighth-rated Oregon State, 7-2-1, also was idle, and No. 6 Notre Dame, 8-2, beat Miami, Fla., Colorado's Bluebonnet Bowl opponent, 24-22 Friday night.

Indiana, which won its only other Big Ten title in 1945 and which was 1-9 last year, scored all of its points in the first half and then held off Purdue, which lost four fumbles including one on the Hoosiers' one-yard line, in the second half. Gerry Cole ran 63 yards for one Indiana TD, rambling 42 yards to set up another and Harry Gonso passed for one.

Texas at El Paso quarterback Billy Stevens set an NCAA career record of 51 TD passes by throwing two against Utah.

In other big games, Clemson won the Atlantic Conference championship by topping South Carolina 23-12, Ivy League king Yale edged Harvard 24-20 in The Game, Colorado drubbed Air Force 33-0 Memphis State knocked North Texas State from the major unbeaten list, 29-20, and Texas Tech edged Arkansas 31-27, apparently costing the Razorbacks a Liberty Bowl bid.

NFL Division Leaders Unchanged

By the Associated Press

Green Bay's burial brigade has made an early killing in the National Football League's Central Division.

But, if you ask Packer pundit Vince Lombardi, Chicago's Papa Bear is a very lively corpse.

Lombardi lauded George Halas, Chicago's 72-year-old owner-coach, Sunday after the Packers nailed down the Central title with a 17-13 verdict over the rugged Bears.

"Get this straight, he's an old man but he's a great man," Lombardi told newsmen in Chicago, where stories had been written suggesting Halas step down after 40 years as the Bears' pilot. "A lesser man might have given up after what happened to his team earlier in the year. But Halas doesn't know what it means."

"Instead of giving up, Mr. Halas turns around and gives the league its most improved team. The Bears are a great club, and I'm glad we clinched it against them."

While the Packers' hard-earned victory gave them an insurmountable 3½-game lead in the Central Division, idle Dallas closed in on the Capitol title, Cleveland clung to the Century lead and unbeaten Baltimore regained its one-game edge in the Coastal race.

New York flattened Philadelphia 44-7, dropping the Eagles three games off Dallas' Capitol pace with three games remaining. The Browns outscored Washington 42-37 to remain one game ahead of New York in the Century scramble. The Colts moved one game up on idle Los Angeles in the Coastal derby by trimming San Francisco 26-9 for a 9-0-2 mark.

Minnesota downed Pittsburgh 41-27 and New Orleans edged Atlanta 27-24 in other NFL games.

In American Football league play, Houston kept its Eastern Division pennant hopes alive with a 27-6 victory over Boston and Miami upended Buffalo 17-14.

Green Bay's defending NFL champs capitalized on Dave Robinson's pass interception and Travis Williams' 69-yard kickoff return for two first-half touchdowns, added a third-quarter field goal by Don Chandler and then held off the Bears for their eighth victory against two losses and one tie. The second-place Bears are 5-6.

Bart Starr passed five yards

to Boyd Dowler for the Packers' first TD and Donny Anderson plunged one yard for the second. Chandler's 38-yard field goal followed Gale Sayers' fumble of a Pacer punt.

Sayers, however, ramblled for 117 yards on 18 carries and scored the Bears' lone touchdown on a 43-yard jaunt. Two field goals by Mac Percival completed the Chicago scoring. Scrambling Fran Tarkenton led the Giants, 6-5, on their biggest point game in four years, passing for 261 yards and three touchdowns. Homer Jones caught two TD passes, including a 63-yarder that helped him become the first NFL receiver to go over the 1,000-yard mark this season.

Leroy Kelly topped the 1,000-yard plateau in rushing yardage, streaking for 163 yards and two touchdowns while helping Cleveland, 7-4, offset the red-hot passing of Redskin quarterback Sonny Jurgensen.

Jurgie hit 32 of 50 tosses for 373 yards and three touchdowns, two touchdowns while helping Cleveland, 7-4, offset the red-hot passing of Redskin quarterback Sonny Jurgensen.

Four field goals by Lou Michaels and Lenny Lyles' 36-yard scoring scamper with an intercepted pass carried the Colts past San Francisco. The 49ers, unable to penetrate Baltimore's tough defense, had to settle for three Tommy Davis field goals while dropping their sixth game against five victories.

Defensive back Karl Kasulke set up two Minnesota touchdowns by blocking a punt and recovering a fumble as the Vikings broke away from Pittsburgh in the final quarter with 21 points in just over two minutes.

Bill Kilmer's seven-yard TD pitch to Kent Kramer with 53 seconds to play shot the Saints past the Falcons in a Dixie dogfight between the NFL's two newest franchises. Hoyle Granger romped for 124 yards and one touchdown; Pete Beathard flipped a two-yard scoring pass to Glenn Bass and John Wittenborn kicked three field goals as Houston, 6-3-1, moved within one game of New York's idle AFL Eastern Division leaders.

Rookie Bob Griese hooked up with Howard Twilley on a 31-yard scoring pass in the final minute, giving Miami its second AFL victory in 10 starts. The Dolphins are only one-half game behind the skidding Bills, who have dropped three in a row.

Red Troops Miss Matthews Reported Down Junior at School

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command, revising downward its estimate of Communist military strength lined up against the allies in South Vietnam, put the total at between 223,000 and 248,000 men.

Announcing a complete overhaul of its intelligence appraisals of the enemy's potential, headquarters omitted from its new tabulation 40,000 Viet Cong political agents previously included.

The gun-carrying Reds and the card-carrying political agents have been lumped to gether in estimates that totaled 297,000.

Under the new look, Communist military ranks have been cut from 6,000 to 34,000 men. The political cadres were estimated to total 75,000 to 85,000, a sharp rise. The figures apparently included some Viet Cong who formerly had been classified as guerrillas.

Brig. Gen. Winant Sidle, chief of information, told newsmen in the latest estimate of military strength included regular army units, administrative and logistical services and guerrilla forces.

"The decline is due mostly to killing them off," Sidle said.

M.U. Students To Hold Mock Convention

COLUMBIA — A mock political convention that could serve as a barometer of young voter attitudes in the national presidential campaign is to be conducted by students at the University of Missouri, Feb. 22-24. More than 2,000 students are expected to participate.

The convention will parallel an actual national political convention. It will be complete with platforms, caucuses, keynote speaker, and the nomination of a political ticket. This year's event will be Republican, as was the 1964 event.

Sponsored by the Missouri Students Association, the convention will be one of the first in the nation.

Robert C. Dickeson, administrative assistant to the dean of students, is adviser.

Staff members of the departments of political science, history, speech, and law will advise the students on formation of committees. Petitioning for various state delegations is now in progress, with individual students and student living groups participating. Rivalry is usually keen for key states.

Students prominent in campus activities make up a 13-member steering committee which for weeks has been busy with early organizational plans for the political convention.

Members of the steering committee include: J. William Hopkins, son of Mr.

and Mrs. J. R. Hopkins of Cape Girardeau, is a senior in arts and science, majoring in English. He is chairman of the rules committee. His University activities include Young Republicans and the Literary Hour. In high school he was active in debate and drama.

Curtis Urges Double Inquiry on Long

ST. LOUIS -- Representative Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), Webster Groves, said that the Missouri Bar and the Department of Justice should investigate the relationship between Sen. Edward V. Long (Dem.), Missouri, and Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer.

Curtis, who has announced his candidacy for the Senate, said this Missouri lawyers had an obligation to clear up innuendos connected with the fee-sharing arrangement between Long and Shenker.

He said the Justice Department should inquire into any association by Shenker with organized crime. Curtis said that Shenker was a criminal lawyer who was close to this element and that Life magazine was investigating organized crime when it came across the Long - Shenker arrangement.

Curtis said he resented implications that his own legal fees were under suspicion because he was making a political campaign that might result in his opposing Long for the Senate seat.

He said he would not make the fee-sharing arrangement an issue in the senatorial campaign. But Curtis said that if it became an issue nevertheless, he stood ready to make public a list of his legal clients and their fees.

Curtis said he long has advocated full disclosure by Congressmen of their assets and business relationships.

In an interview on Post-Dispatch station KSD-TV, Curtis said he assumed that the Justice Department was inquiring into the case "because it some of these allegations are true, there's criminal violations involved as well as ethical violations."

The Missouri Bar administration is reported to be looking into the Long-Shenker case, but Fred B. Hulise of Sadalia, chairman of the agency, has declined to confirm or deny this.

State Liasion Office Opened

NEW MADRID — A new regional office of the Missouri department of community affairs has been established at New Madrid with Jack Viorce of Gideon as the director.

The purpose of the new agency, according to Pierce, is to associate and coordinate all federal and state funds channeled into the area and to assist local, community and county governments and other agencies to secure federal and state funds for worthy projects.

Pierce will serve in an advisory capacity to the six counties in the region—Dunklin, Pemisot, Mississippi, New Madrid, Scott and Stoddard. He reports that he will be available to all community, city and county governments and agencies to assist in preparing component parts of programs desired and to act in their behalf in requests for state and federal funds.

He will also be on call for meetings with any group or individual who wishes information or assistance from his office.

Pierce credits Rep. Gene Copeland of New Madrid County for getting this regional office established. It is the second office to be set up in Missouri, the only other one being in St. Louis. The state department will be opening other suc offices over the state later.

The regional director was employed in the Jefferson City office of the state department of revenue prior to his appointment to the regional office of Community Affairs at New Madrid. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce and two sons and daughter live at Gideon.

M.U. Students To Hold Mock Convention

COLUMBIA — A mock political convention that could serve as a barometer of young voter attitudes in the national presidential campaign is to be conducted by students at the University of Missouri, Feb. 22-24.

More than 2,000 students are expected to participate.

The convention will parallel an actual national political convention. It will be complete with platforms, caucuses, keynote speaker, and the nomination of a political ticket. This year's event will be Republican, as was the 1964 event.

Sponsored by the Missouri Students Association, the convention will be one of the first in the nation.

Robert C. Dickson, administrative assistant to the dean of students, is adviser.

Staff members of the departments of political science, history, speech, and law will advise the students on formation of committees. Petitioning for various state delegations is now in progress, with individual students and student living groups participating. Rivalry is usually keen for key states.

Students prominent in campus activities make up a 13-member steering committee which for weeks has been busy with early organizational plans for the political convention.

Members of the steering committee include: J. William Hopkins, son of Mr.

and Mrs. J. R. Hopkins of Cape Girardeau, is a senior in arts and science, majoring in English. He is chairman of the rules committee. His university activities include Young Republicans and the Literary Hour. In high school he was active in debate and drama.

Curtis Urges Double Inquiry on Long

ST. LOUIS -- Representative said he was concerned about Thomas B. Curtis (Rep.), the Long-Shenker relationship Webster Groves, said that because he (Curtis) was ammember of the Missouri Bar. Curtis of Justice should investigate the relationship between Sen. Edward V. Long (Dem.), Missouri, and Morris Shenker, St. Louis lawyer.

Curtis, who has announced his candidacy for the Senate, said this Missouri lawyers had an obligation to clear up innuendos connected with the fee-sharing arrangement between Long and Shenker.

He said the Justice Department should inquire into any association by Shenker with organized crime. Curtis said that Shenker was a criminal lawyer who was close to this element and that Life magazine was investigating organized crime when it came across the Long - Shenker arrangement.

Curtis said he resented implications that his own legal fees were under suspicion because he was making a political campaign that might result in his opposing Long for the Senate seat.

He said he would not make the fee-sharing arrangement an issue in the senatorial campaign. But Curtis said that if it became an issue nevertheless, he stood ready to make public a list of his legal clients and their fees.

Curtis said he long has advocated full disclosure by Congressmen of their assets and business relationships.

Bartender Robbed and Beaten

CAIRO -- Two masked bandits Wednesday night robbed Martin's Tavern and assaulted the bartender, escaping with about $300.

The pair, armed with a pistol and brass knuckles, entered the tavern through a side door shortly before 11 p.m. They were wearing stocking masks over their faces.

Only the bartender, Morris Rust, and a couple of customers were present in the tavern when the holdup occurred.

Rust was victim of an unprovoked attack by the bandit with the brass knuckles. He was struck over the right eye opening a wound that required hospital treatment. He described the two bandits as Negroes, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall and apparently in their late teens or early twenties.

Rust said the two entered a side door and the first he became aware of what was happening was when the one with the gun laid his across the bar and told him it was a holdup.

He said the second bandit came around in back of the bar with a paper sack and told him to open the register.

"I told them I was under orders not to resist any holdup attempts and to give them anything they wanted," Rust told police. The bandit with the sack scooped the money from the register.

Rust said as he turned his head to look at the bandit with the gun, the one behind the bar hit him over the eye with the brass knuckles and told him: "Don't use the phone or we'll shoot you!"

The two then fled out the side door. Police found the discarded stocking masks at the rear of the tavern in the darkness where the two apparently tossed them as they ran.

The few customers in the tavern were seated at tables and apparently unaware of a holdup being in progress until the two bandits were almost ready to leave.

Owner Martin O'Shea said most of the $300 was in $5 bills. Rust said he went to the side door and looked out after the bandits left, then ran to the telephone and summoned police.

The pistol appeared to be a .25 caliber model, Rust said.

Wig Cleaning Is Job For A Professional

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am hoping to help Pearl who cannot afford professional care for her wig. I have three wigs, was a beautician at one time, but I still send mine out for professional attention. To do it yourself, you need professional wig-cleaning solution, reconditioning oils, wig spray and attention. They have to be cleaned about once a month or every six weeks, depending on the amount of wear. It should be brushed and combed when needed, but care must be taken not to rip the tied hairs from the base. Set from time to time with rollers but, again, use care. The cleaning fluid is inflammable, so you need a large container, rubber gloves and an airy place. One needs a hair block and pins to secure the wig to the block when it is being combed, styled or brushed. Keep it on the block between cleanings. It depends on the quality of the wig but sometimes the initial set will remain through repeated cleanings. Even if money is a problem, it is better to invest in the cleaning and set by a professional stylist and do the regular maintenance one's self. There is nothing inexpensive about the upkeep of a wig.—LILLIAN

DEAR POLLY—Pearl needs a wig block, stand, wig pins (T-shaped), net hair rollers with brushes inside and liquid setting lotion. The wig block and stand can be hooked up on the ironing board. Pin the wig at the sides, top and back and stretch as you do it. It tends to shrink when wet. Saturate with the lotion and set as you normally do. Put a net on, dry and comb out. A lanolin spray is best but do not use a lot of spray. Throw a net loosely over the wig when not wearing it. I cannot stress too strongly the importance of having the wig cleaned by a professional. Try not to wear it all the time. Give the scalp a chance to breathe and keep your hair short.—A HAIR DRESSER

DEAR GIRLS—A professional also told me that real hair, hand-tied wigs should not be shampooed but always cleaned with the fluid made for that purpose. Also wigs should not be stored in wig cases or plastic bags for long periods of time as they may absorb a plastic smell. Airing is needed from time to time.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can someone tell me how to remove deep sharp creases in one corner of my room-sized, foam back, nylon rug?—LAUREL

Bartender Robbed and Beaten

CAIRO -- Two masked bandits Wednesday night robbed Martin's Tavern and assaulted the bartender, escaping with about $300.

The pair, armed with a pistol and brass knuckles, entered the tavern through a side door shortly before 11 p.m. They were wearing stocking masks over their faces.

Only the bartender, Morris Rust, and a couple of customers were present in the tavern when the holdup occurred.

Rust was victim of an unprovoked attack by the bandit with the brass knuckles. He was struck over the right eye opening a wound that required hospital treatment.

He described the two bandits as Negroes, about 5 feet, 9 inches tall and apparently in their late teens or early twenties.

Rust said the two entered a side door and the first he became aware of what was happening was when the one with the gun laid his across the bar and told him it was a holdup.

He said the second bandit came around in back of the bar with a paper sack and told him to open the register.

"I told them I was under orders not to resist any holdup attempts and to give them anything they wanted," Rust told police. The bandit with the sack scooped the money from the register.

Rust said as he turned his head to look at the bandit with the gun, the one behind the bar hit him over the eye with the brass knuckles and told him: "Don't use the phone or we'll shoot you!"

The two then fled out the side door. Police found the discarded stocking masks at the rear of the tavern in the darkness where the two apparently tossed them as they ran.

The few customers in the tavern were seated at tables and apparently unaware of a holdup being in progress until the two bandits were almost ready to leave.

Owner Martin O'Shea said most of the $300 was in $5 bills. Rust said he went to the side door and looked out after the bandits left, then ran to the telephone and summoned police.

The pistol appeared to be a .25 caliber model, Rust said.

Wig Cleaning Is Job For A Professional

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am hoping to help Pearl who cannot afford professional care for her wig. I have three wigs, was a beautician at one time, but I still send mine out for professional attention. To do it yourself, you need professional wig-cleaning solution, reconditioning oils, wig spray and attention. They have to be cleaned about once a month or every six weeks, depending on the amount of wear. It should be brushed and combed when needed, but care must be taken not to rip the tied hairs from the base. Set from time to time with rollers but, again, use care. The cleaning fluid is inflammable, so you need a large container, rubber gloves and an airy place. One needs a hair block and pins to secure the wig to the block when it is being combed, styled or brushed. Keep it on the block between cleanings. It depends on the quality of the wig but sometimes the initial set will remain through repeated cleanings. Even if money is a problem, it is better to invest in the cleaning and set by a professional stylist and do the regular maintenance one's self. There is nothing inexpensive about the upkeep of a wig.—LILLIAN

DEAR POLLY—Pearl needs a wig block, stand, wig pins (T-shaped), net hair rollers with brushes inside and liquid setting lotion. The wig block and stand can be hooked up on the ironing board. Pin the wig at the sides, top and back and stretch as you do it. It tends to shrink when wet. Saturate with the lotion and set as you normally do. Put a net on, dry and comb out. A lanolin spray is best but do not use a lot of spray. Throw a net loosely over the wig when not wearing it. I cannot stress too strongly the importance of having the wig cleaned by a professional. Try not to wear it all the time. Give the scalp a chance to breathe and keep your hair short.—A HAIR DRESSER

DEAR GIRLS—A professional also told me that real hair, hand-tied wigs should not be shampooed but always cleaned with the fluid made for that purpose. Also wigs should not be stored in wig cases or plastic bags for long periods of time as they may absorb a plastic smell. Airing is needed from time to time.—POLLY

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—Can someone tell me how to remove deep sharp creases in one corner of my room-sized, foam back, nylon rug?—LAUREL

YuleDate with the Camera

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If your most recent portrait stands on the piano and shows you in all the glory of yesterday rather than the way you look today, it's probably because you're a bit insecure about how you might look by comparison.

Professional photographers report that women between the ages of 25 and 55 are the ones most guilty of this fear. It's foolish fear, really. Because, with the proper preparation, no woman in that age group has to look old today.

Christmas is the perfect time to give a new portrait to your family. It's a meaningful gift they will cherish.

Here's a rundown of what to wear and how to do your make-up so that the photograph will be the success you hope for.

First, allow at least six weeks from the date of your portrait appointment until delivery of the finished prints. Photographers are rushed during the pre-Christmas season. Ask the photographer's advice on colors of lipstick and wardrobe, especially if you are having your photograph taken in color.

Wear something classic and uncluttered, not fussy. You might bring along a choice of outfits and let the photographer pick the best style and color.

The neckline of your dress is important. Be sure it fits correctly and is flattering. Avoid stripes, plaids and loud prints that will detract from your face.

Keep your jewelry to a minimum. A single or double strand of pearls is always good. Today's chunky pins and huge dangling earrings are certainly attractive. But remember that any faddish style in clothes or jewelry will date your picture in years to come.

A "Brolly" Makes a Fine Gift

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Take a bright outlook on the weather. No matter how gloomy the forecast, umbrella creator Polan Katz has come up with a collection that will turn cloud-hopping into a matter of fun and fashion. And just in time to solve some of the problems on your Christmas list, too.

There are prints as novel as the latest in art and others that derive inspiration from treasures in an antique shop. There are psychedelic prints, classic tartans, abstracts and geometrics.

But a sure conversation piece is his take-off on the Tiffany lampshade that hung in grandma's dining room. It took more than three years to develop this design that duplicates so faithfully the effect of the stained glass shade, the translucency, even the unique dome shape.

There are unusual combinations of umbrella and accessory items for holiday shoppers in the Polan Katz collection, too. You'll find umbrellas to match handbags and shoes, to co-ordinate with raincoats and boots. There are matching scarves and umbrellas, Givumbrellas, with their own gloves that stretch to fit all, the after-five "Clocktail" brolly that duplicates the clock dial on the black nylon cover with numerals and SPECIAL CHRISTMAS GIFT: A new portrait photograph makes a memorable present to family and close friends. Keep your ensemble and your make-up simple so that the photograph won't look dated in a year or two. The final touch in make-up (inset) can be made at the studio to insure a fresh look for the sitting.

As to make-up, use a liquid foundation. Pancake or matte-finish foundation will give you a caky appearance.

Use a lighter-than-normal tone foundation to highlight your best features and to cover dark circles under your eyes. A darker tone will minimize a double chin or too round face. Be sure to blend in the foundations with the rest of your make-up.

For the eyes, a very thin line above the lashes and a little eye shadow are fine, if you use a light hand. Avoid fake eyelashes unless you use them all the time. And if you wear glasses, don't remove them for the camera. The photographer can avoid glare.

This is not the time to experiment with a new hairdo. Wear your accustomed style.

Allow enough time to get to the studio without rushing. Dress leisurely and put the finishing touches on your make-up after you have arrived.

You and your family will be proud of your new portrait—and you won't have to listen to young Jane tell friends, "That was mom in 1960."

TO TURN YOU ON fair weather or foul is this psychedelic print umbrella by Polan Katz, leading brolly designers. Shock colors and eye popping lines serve to make this a razzle-dazzle accessory. Imported crook handle makes carrying easy.

in the rain there are gold and silver umbrellas, others that shimmer in colorful vinyl-coated brocade and gayer of all, the after-five "Clocktail" brolly that duplicates the clock dial on the black nylon cover with numerals and hands set in glittering rhinestones. It's a whole new world walking between the raindrops this season.

SURGING OVER STUPENDOUS HILLS, hugging the road over treacherous bridges, daring what no truck ever dared before, Mighty Mike trucks (left) sway dangerously over the exciting Camelback Skyway, over 12 feet long. These trucks by Remco are only 5 1/2 inches in length. An advanced new design in auto transport is the newest addition to Structo's Pow-R-R Fleet of sturdy steel (right). This model has opened girder construction and smartly styled turbine cab. Ramps adjust to two positions. Yule Date with the Camera

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If your most recent portrait stands on the piano and shows you in all the glory of yesterday rather than the way you look today, it's probably because you're a bit insecure about how you might look by comparison.

Professional photographers report that women between the ages of 25 and 55 are the ones most guilty of this fear. It's foolish fear, really. Because, with the proper preparation, no woman in that age group has to look old today.

Christmas is the perfect time to give a new portrait to your family. It's a meaningful gift they will cherish.

Here's a rundown of what to wear and how to do your make-up so that the photograph will be the success you hope for.

First, allow at least six weeks from the date of your portrait appointment until delivery of the finished prints. Photographers are rushed during the pre-Christmas season. Ask the photographer's advice on colors of lipstick and wardrobe, especially if you are having your photograph taken in color.

Wear something classic and uncluttered, not fussy. You might bring along a choice of outfits and let the photographer pick the best style and color.

The neckline of your dress is important. Be sure it fits correctly and is flattering. Avoid stripes, plaids and loud prints that will detract from your face.

Keep your jewelry to a minimum. A single or double strand of pearls is always good. Today's chunky pins and huge dangling earrings are certainly attractive. But remember that any faddish style in clothes or jewelry will date your picture in years to come.

A "Brolly" Makes a Fine Gift

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Take a bright outlook on the weather. No matter how gloomy the forecast, umbrella creator Polan Katz has come up with a collection that will turn cloud-hopping into a matter of fun and fashion. And just in time to solve some of the problems on your Christmas list, too.

There are prints as novel as the latest in art and others that derive inspiration from treasures in an antique shop. There are psychedelic prints, classic tartans, abstracts and geometrics.

But a sure conversation piece is his take-off on the Tiffany lampshade that hung in grandma's dining room. It took more than three years to develop this design that duplicates so faithfully the effect of the stained glass shade, the translucency, even the unique dome shape.

There are unusual combinations of umbrella and accessory items for holiday shoppers in the Polan Katz collection, too. You'll find umbrellas to match handbags and shoes, to co-ordinate with raincoats and boots. There are matching scarves and umbrellas, Gluvumbrellas, with their own gloves that stretch to fit any size hand and the Beltrella that unlatches its shoulder strap sling to double as a leash belt.

For gala holiday evenings

TO TURN YOU ON fair weather or foul is this psychedelic print umbrella by Polan Katz, leading brolly designers. Shock colors and eye popping lines serve to make this a razzle-dazzle accessory. Imported crook handle makes carrying easy.

in the rain there are gold and silver umbrellas, others that shimmer in colorful vinyl-coated brocade and gayer of all, the after-five "Clocktail" brolly that duplicates the clock dial on the black nylon cover with numerals and

College Dropouts Blamed on Parents

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this letter in the hope it will reach the thousands of parents whose children have gone off to college for the first time.

I am a registrar in a Midwestern coeducational college. I have seen dozens of students quit and go home because they were homesick. Other students, equally homesick, have stuck it out and gone on to graduate.

The difference between these two groups is invariably the parents. It is amazing to me how many otherwise intelligent parents tell their kids who blubber on the phone about homesickness, "You don't have to stay there if you don't want to. Come home."

Then there are parents who write to their kids and tell them how much they miss them, how sick they've been and how hard up for money they are. Naturally the student who is not very enthusiastic about college in the first place is inclined to chuck everything and come home "for the sake of the folks."

Wise parents understand the value of a college education and do everything they can to help their children get that diploma. The student who is told, "This is a major challenge, stay there and meet it," will often do just that. The student who is permitted to throw in the towel and come home after a few weeks (or months) may well develop a defeatist approach to all of life's challenges.

-- JOHN W. HAUSER, RAPID CITY, S.D.

Dear J. W. H.: Thank you for a superb letter. I have long suspected that parents who allow their kids to fold out of college within the first few weeks or months do so because they, the parents, are lonely and want the child at home. I hope your letter opens up a few thousand eyes around the country.

STATE TO REVERSE LICENSE PLATE COLORS

JEFFERSON CITY - State license plates for passenger automobiles will be reversed in color beginning in January from white on dark green to green on white, according to Howard W. Smith, director of Motor Vehicle Registration.

Smith said that the color for 1969 plates had not been determined, but that a decision would be made near the first of the year. Missouri changed last year from issuing annual stickers to making new plates each year.

The old maroon plates will be out of circulation as of Jan. 1, but a new maroon on white plate will be used next year for trucks and some buses.

Beyond local trucks, commercial buses and trailers will be displaying white on black licenses, while owners of historic motors will purchase a black on white plate. Missouri official cars and State Highway Patrol cars will keep their present white on dark green license plates.

Smith expects that the Legislature will vote approval of reflectorized plates in the 1969 regular session, despite the fact that a similar measure was defeated in the last session. The National Safety Council and the National Highway Safety Act both have recommended the use of reflectorized plates by states, and some already have adopted the use of them, but Missouri has balked at the cost thus far -- about 25 cents compared with a nine cent cost for the current plates.

Another move may be made during the next regular legislative session to return Missouri to using two plates instead of one. The practice was abandoned several years ago, but law enforcement agencies have consistently lobbied for reinstating this practice.

The Missouri Highway Patrol has favored the use of reflectorized plates, but has not taken a position on the use of dual plates.

The use of annual plates is costing the state more than twice the amount spent for stickers -- which were about four cents each -- but the overall operation is expected to be less expensive and time-consuming since many stickers were often lost, easily copied, and frequently stolen, creating undue administrative problems.

HEARNES TO ASK FOR ADC WITH FATHERS

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has announced that he will include legislation to provide state welfare aid to dependent children of unemployed fathers living at home in the upcoming special session of the General Assembly.

The governor appears to be re-treating somewhat from his earlier position that he would not introduce legislation which did not have a substantial chance of passing. A similar bill was introduced in the last session of the Legislature but failed in the Senate. Hearnes said, however, that a poll of Senators showed that it would pass if introduced this time.

The governor said an amendment adopted by the United States Senate reinforced his intention to put the welfare measure in his call for the special session. A special session cannot consider any bills except those set forth by the governor.

The Senate amendment would require all states to provide welfare aid to dependent children of unemployed fathers to the fathers also. Missouri only gives welfare aid to dependent children only if one parent, usually the father, is not living in the home.

Tight Dress Hazards Faced by Customer

BY JACK STRAUSS, L.L.D.

When Alice went shopping for a dress, it was a project second in production only to World War II. Consequently, there was nothing unusual in her spending all afternoon on one occasion just getting in and out of dresses. One dress, however, was so tight on her that it looked like she had been poured into it. The problem was how to pour her out of it.

Wiggling to and fro, Alice fought to get the dress over her well designed curves and then over her head. When success seemed near, however, disaster struck. She jabbed herself with a wire that was attached to a flower on the dress. And, when an infection subsequently developed, she sued the owner of the dress shop for her injury.

"She was careless in giving me such a tight dress to try on," complained Alice in court. "What's more, she should have helped me get out of it."

"I thought she could do it by herself," retorted the owner of the dress shop. "Besides, I was busy putting away all the dresses she had tried on. With two hands, I can still only do one thing at a time."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the shop owner responsible for not helping Alice out of her tight dress? This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that Alice, better than anyone else, knew that the dress was too tight and that she needed help in extricating herself from it. By trying to escape from it on her own, she invited danger and was thus responsible for her own injuries.

THE ARISTOCRAT OF YEARBOOKS

"The World in 1967" is in a class by itself.

Not just another yearbook, it is in fact a handsome volume of living history profusely illustrated with action photographs and written, frequently by the men who reported the stories in the first place, as if you were right there when the events took place.

If you have seen the previous volumes in this series, you doubtless have been impressed with their appearance and quality.

You will be still more impressed with this one. Containing 264 pages, it will be bigger than ever. There will be half again as many color plates, for a total of 60, as well as hundreds of photo reproductions in black and white.

All in all, it's a book that no student, no home library, no one interested in what's going on in the world, should be without. And think what fascination it will have in future years for anyone born in 1967, or for anyone at all who has lived through this year of momentous news.

"The World" series is prepared for this and other member newspapers by The Associated Press, world's largest news gathering organization. To make sure that all important events of the year are included, the editors do not complete the manuscript until Jan. 1. Even so they manage somehow to have the book actually off the press the first week in February.

I hope your letter opens up a few thousand eyes around the country.

Dear Ann Landers: One sentence from you will settle this argument.

Is it good taste to display checks with the wedding gifts? I feel that it is not, since some of my affluent relatives gave rather moderate checks as compared to the well-heeled folks of my fiancée's side whose checks were downright staggering.

My parents feel it is spirit of the giver and not the size of the gift that counts. They say all checks should be on display. What is the last and final word on this? — BATTLE WEARY

Dear Weary: There is no "last and final word." The answer is, not part of the Bill of Rights, or the Magna Carta. I can only give you my opinion.

I think wedding checks should be placed in sealed envelopes—with the names of the givers on the outside. Those who view the gifts will then be aware that Uncle Barney and Aunt Eleanor gave a gift but the size of the check will remain undisclosed.

Confidential to Your Old Houston Buddy Who Is Not Drinking Anymore: From the sound of your letter you are not drinking any less. Your chief problem is still booze and until you are willing to accept this you will continue to have the other problems. I recommend Alcoholics Anonymous. Look in the phone book; learn when and where the next meeting takes place -- and go.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism -- Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

STATE TO REVERSE LICENSE PLATE COLORS
JEFFERSON CITY -- State license plates for passenger automobiles will be reversed in color beginning in January from white on dark green to green on white, according to Howard W. Smith, director of Motor Vehicle Registration.

Smith said that the color for 1969 plates had not been determined, but that a decision would be made near the first of the year. Missouri changed last year from issuing annual stickers to making new plates each year.

The old maroon plates will be out of circulation as of Jan. 1, but a new maroon on white plate will be used next year for trucks and some buses.

Beyond local trucks, commercial buses and trailers will be displaying white on black license plates, while owners of historic motors will purchase a black on white plate. Missouri official cars and State Highway Patrol cars will keep their present white on dark green license plates.

Smith expects that the Legislature will vote approval of reauthorized plates in the 1969 regular session, despite the fact that a similar measure was defeated in the last session. The National Safety Council and the National Highway Safety Act both have recommended the use of reauthorized plates by states, and some already have adopted the use of them, but Missouri has balked at the cost thus far -- about 25 cents compared with a nine cent cost for the current plates.

Another move may be made during the next regular legislative session to return Missouri to using two plates instead of one. The practice was abandoned several years ago, but law enforcement agencies have consistently lobbied for reinstating this practice.

The Missouri Highway Patrol has favored the use of reauthorized plates, but has not taken a position on the use of dual plates.

The use of annual plates is costing the state more than twice the amount spent for stickers -- but the overall operation is expected to be less expensive and time-consuming since many stickers were often lost, easily copied, and frequently stolen, creating undue administrative problems.

HEARNES TO ASK FOR ADC WITH FATHERS
Gov. Warren E. Hearnes has announced that he will include legislation to provide state welfare aid to dependent children of unemployed fathers living at home in the upcoming special session of the General Assembly.

The governor appears to be re-treating somewhat from his earlier position that he would not introduce legislation which did not have a substantial chance of passing. A similar bill was introduced in the last session of the Legislature but failed in the Senate. Hearnes said, however, that a poll of Senators showed that it would pass if introduced this time.

The Senate amendment would require all states to provide welfare aid to dependent children of unemployed fathers to the fathers also. Missouri only gives welfare aid to dependent children only if one parent, usually the father, is not living in the home.

If You Were The Judge Tight Dress Hazards Faced by Customer

BY JACK STRAUSS, L.L.D.
When Alice went shopping for a dress, it was a project second in production only to World War II. Consequently, there was nothing unusual in her spending all afternoon on one occasion just getting in and out of dresses. One dress, however, was so tight on her that it looked like she had been poured into it. The problem was how to pour her out of it.

Wiggling to and fro, Alice fought to get the dress over her well designed curves and then over her head. When success seemed near, however, disaster struck. She jabbed herself with a wire that was attached to a flower on the dress. And, when an infection subsequently developed, she sued the owner of the dress shop for her injury.

"She was careless in giving me such a tight dress to try on," complained Alice in court. "What's more, she should have helped me get out of it."

"I thought she could do it by herself," retorted the owner of the dress shop. "Besides, I was busy putting away all the dresses she had tried on. With two hands, I can still only do one thing at a time."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the shop owner responsible for not helping Alice out of her tight dress? This is how the judge ruled: No! The judge held that Alice, better than anyone else, knew that the dress was too tight and that she needed help in extricating herself from it. By trying to escape from it on her own, she invited danger and was thus responsible for her own injuries.

The World in 1967

THE ARISTOCRAT OF YEARBOOKS

"The World in 1967" is in a class by itself. Not just another yearbook, it is in fact a handsome volume of living history profusely illustrated with action photographs and written, frequently by the men who reported the stories in the first place, as if you were right there when the events took place.

If you have seen the previous volumes in this series, you doubtless have been impressed with their appearance and quality.

You will be still more impressed with this one. Containing 264 pages, it will be bigger than ever. There will be half again as many color plates, for a total of 60, as well as hundreds of photo reproductions in black and white.

All in all, it's a book that no student, no home library, no one interested in what's going on in the world, should be without. And think what fascination it will have in future years for anyone born in 1967, or for anyone at all who has lived through this year of momentous news.

"The World" series is prepared for this and other member newspapers by The Associated Press, world's largest news gathering organization. To make sure that all important events of the year are included, the editors do not complete the manuscript until Jan. 1. Even so they manage somehow to have the book actually off the press the first week in February.

Make sure you get your copy by ordering now. The cost is only $3.50. Here is a coupon for your convenience.

Doctors Say LSD Caused Birth Defect

BOSTON (AP) - University of Iowa pediatricians say they have encountered the first documented case of a baby born with birth defects because her mother had taken the hallucinatory drug LSD during pregnancy.

The baby girl, born in Iowa last summer, has a severely deformed right leg.

Her 19-year-old mother took enough LSD at four times during pregnancy to have hallucinations, "to go on a trip," the pediatricians say.

The report by Dr. Hans Zellweger, a professor of pediatrics, and his associates is published in the current issue of a British medical journal, The Lancet, printed and distributed simultaneously in London and Boston.

They said they are certain that LSD caused the defect in the baby because there is no evidence of birth defects in the families of father or mother, both parents were healthy, and the mother had taken no drug except LSD during her pregnancy.

They also said that in both the mother and the father laboratory analysis revealed breaks in their chromosomes, tiny cell structures which carry the genes, or hereditary units. Medical literature recently by investigators who found chromosome breaks among LSD users and said evidence indicated that the defects could be transmitted to offspring, but none reported an actual case.

The right leg of the baby girl born in Iowa is shorter than her left, and is attached to her hit at an odd angle. Her right foot also is short and has only three toes.

Zellweger's report did not indicate that all women who have chromosome breaks as a result of taking LSD will have deformed children, but said LSD taken during pregnancy definitely cause birth defects.

Zellweger said the critical date of the mother's taking of LSD appears to have been the 45th day of her pregnancy.

He noted that it coincides with the experience during the early 1960s with the drug thalidomide, which was linked with limb deformities when taken between the 42nd and 47th days of pregnancy.

Jim Hale... an interest in communication
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat picture.

Talent and Hard Work Aid Hale

Editor's Note: Jim Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hale, was featured in a St. Louis Globe-Democrat story about young career people.

ST. LOUIS -- KTVI newscaster Jim Hale, just 26, has already had years of experience in radio and television. Beginning as a radio broadcaster in his home town of Sikeston, he switched to a television newscasting job in Cape Girardeau while he was a student at Southeast Missouri State College. From 1961 through 1965 he combed behind a degree in speech and English with his full-time job.

Not content to end his education with a bachelor's degree, Jim went on to the University of Missouri to study for a master's in radio-television-journalism.

Working and going to school had become a habit for the ambitious Hale. While at Missouri he held down the assistant news directors spot at station KOMU-TV owned and operated by the university.

When he finished his master's classwork last spring, Jim was quickly offered a job at KTVI. "I was really surprised," he smiled with a slight shake of his head. "It's not often a fellow at 26 gets a chance to work in one of the top 10 television markets in the country."

Despite his youth, Hale has handled his assignment like a veteran. "The hours are long," he explained. "I usually work from 1 p.m. to 11 p.m. Each day I cover at least one story. It may be a news conference, a breaking story, an interview or a stand up piece. I write most of the news I read on the air, edit film and then Glenn Wilson (Jim's partner on the 5:30 p.m. and 10 p.m. news) and I decide how we're going to handle each story on the air."

Despite an ambition to someday be a general assignment reporter for a network, Jim, who lives with his wife and 4-year-old daughter in St. Louis county, plans to stay here indefinitely.

As a past president of the casters of Missouri and a member of the Missouri and National Radio-TV News Directors Association, he has developed an interest in communication and its impact on the community.

Currently, to complete his work for his master's degree, he is drafting a model law for Missouri that would allow a newsman to protect the sources of his information.
